Court Vote 4-1 Kills New Act

By a majority of four to one, the Alberta appeal court in judgments handed down on Monday morning declared the Provincially Guaranteed Securities Interest Act and the Provincially Guaranteed Securities Proceedings Act ultra vires of the legislative powers of the Alberta legislature.

Concurring with the judgment of Chief Justice Horace Harvey are Mr. Justice H. W. Lunney, Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray and Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd. Mr. Justice Frank Ford in a dissenting judgment found that the Provincially Guaranteed Securities Proceedings Act was a valid exercise of the power of the legislature to legislate under sections of the British North America Act under property and civil rights and the administration of justice in the province.

The full court held that the Provincially Guaranteed Securities Interest Act was ultra vires of the provincial legislature, as it was interest legislation, a field exclusively reserved to the Dominion parliament under the provisions of subsection 18, section 91, of the British North America Act.

INTEREST SLASHED

The appeal, brought by the attorney-general's department on behalf of the provincial government, arose out of an action brought by the Independent Order of Foresters against the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District seeking enforcement of payment of full interest on Lethbridge Northern bonds held by the Order.

Interest on these bonds was payable at six per cent., but under the legislation attacked in the appeal the interest rate was reduced 50 per cent. Interest payments at the reduced rates were tendered by the provincial government's agents, but were refused by the Foresters' Order.

This is the second occasion on which Alberta's courts have de-

FRANCE PUTS WAR QUESTION UP TO HITLER

Czech Situation Leaves No Room For Germany To Doubt

PARIS, May 23.—France put the question of peace or war squarely up to Germany today, leaving no doubt she would fight any unprovoked aggression against Czechoslovakia.

The calmness of Sunday's municipal elections in Czechoslovakia and the firm stand taken by France and Great Britain against possible German interference were considered in Paris to have eased the tension slightly.

Except for constant conferences at the foreign ministry and Premier Edouard Daladier's office in the national defence ministry, France outwardly was calm. The French feeling seemed to be hope for the best while preparing for the worst.

Heavy Rains Fall

LETHBRIDGE, May 23.—Precipitation sent over the three-inch mark for May when heavy showers fell here during the week-end.

SAVINGS PLAN LATEST IDEA FOR TAX CUT

Council to Study Proposed Operation of Municipal Savings Office

Proposed establishment of a municipal savings office for the purpose of reducing taxation in Edmonton will be studied by city council at its regular meeting Monday night.

The plan is outlined in a letter received at city hall from Lloyd Jaeger, of the Lloyd Jaeger Company, Toronto. He suggests that the savings office buy up the outstanding obligations (bonds) of the city either before or at maturity; all municipal obligations would be taken care of at the same call rates charged the Dominion by the Bank of Canada.

All receipts being in the form of deposits, there would be no shareholders to derive any profits. Mr. Jaeger states in his letter. Any excess over the amount paid in interest on deposits and cost of operation could be made to accrue to the municipality and provide quite a source of revenue. He recommends that the scheme be administered by a board of nine trustees, four of whom would be appointed by the municipality.

Mr. Jaeger states the plan has been operated successfully at Guernsey in the Channel Islands, also in the town of Woergl in the Tyrolean Alps, Austria.

FOREST FIRE SITUATION IS STILL SERIOUS

No further reports on the bush fire situation throughout northern Alberta were received by the provincial forestry branch here over the week-end, but it is not believed the situation has improved much during the past two days owing to continued dry weather in northern districts.

Northern Alberta Railways reported Monday that no fires were burning near N.A.R. lines.

It was reported that homesteaders clearing land were responsible largely for bush fires which have been sweeping through the timber lands during the past few days.

Fires are reported northwest of Lac La Biche on Wandering River, in the vicinity of McMillan Lake; between Peliqan Rapids and Wabiscaw, 100 miles downriver from Athabasca Landing, near Peace River; also south of Grande Prairie and northwest of Fort Assiniboine.

Government Is Undismayed At Vancouver Affair

OTTAWA, May 23—Threats or mass demonstrations in British Columbia or elsewhere will not influence the government in the allocation of money for unemployment relief works, Hon. Yellowknife River Claims Staked For Distance Of 70 Miles

Former Edmonton Contractor Back With Ore Samples to Dazzle Dreams of Incas —Many Rich Finds Reported

J. M. "Jack" Stewart, former Edmonton contractor, came back to town Saturday from the Yellowknife district for the first time since he left to go prospecting in the north seven years ago. He came back with his pockets and bags stuffed with samples of high-grade ore—evidence of the fact that at last he has "struck it rich". Yellowknife River claims have been staked for a distance of 70 miles, he said.

"I dug that out of a vein of quartz that is nine feet thick and which I followed on the surface for 400 feet," said Stewart, displaying a piece of quartz the size of his fist which was literally studded with pure gold. Enough to dazzle the wildest dreams of the Incas.

"This particular vein is south and east of the Yellowknife district in which so many successful finds have been made."

Stewart stated that he noticed "quite a difference in the city." "There are a lot more lights than there were when I went north seven years ago. There are brighter signs and a great many new ones that weren't there when I left.

LIGHTS GROW TIRESOME

"But then up where I have been about the only lights there were, were the northern lights, and they get kind of tiresome after the first couple of years," he remarked.

Stewart expects to leave for New York within the next day or two with his attorney, H. M. Phillip, law graduate from the University of Manitoba, who is running a law office in Yellowknife in connection with S. R. Wallace and Co., of Edmonton. They are considering offers to purchase their property here, but expect that they will not accept any until they have attempted to dispose of it in New York.

Stewart stated that he believes that there will be about 500 men prospecting in the Yellowknife area

Smiling and affable, the prime minister acknowledged cheers which greeted his announcement that a conference had been arranged between Premier Milan Hodza and Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten Germans over whom Germany has declared herself protector.

FOLK DANCING OPENS MUSIC COMPETITIONS

31st Alberta Musical Festival Gets Under Way In City

Folk and aesthetic dancing and elocution contests occupied the opening sessions of the 31st Alberta Musical Festival which opened concurrently at the Masonic Temple and Y.W.C.A. at 9 a.m. on Monday. Competitions were continued at the Masonic Temple in the afternoon and on Tuesday the scenes of competitions will be McDougall auditorium and the Masonic Temple.

Exceptionally high standards featured the dancing events, with representatives of the Kinney School of Dancing touching 90 marks out of 100 in two different competitions, winning warm praise from the adjudicator, Miss Marjorie Davidson, of the Edmonton Public Schools staff.

WIN 90 MARKS

The Kinney school won 90 marks in the folk dancing event for senior private schools and in the junior aesthetic dancing, Greek interpretive classic or toe dancing. In both these events the adjudicator bestowed warm praise on the winners.

The Kinney school, the Jordan school and the Aileen school won the major number of awards in the dancing competitions.

In the elocution classes the highest marks scored were 82, this peak being touched by Ivor Roberts, who won the Grade IX. elocution contest.

The elocutionists taking part were from Grades I., XII., X., VII., VIII., IX., VI.

A large number of spectators congregated at both the Masonic Temple and Y.W.C.A. to hear the competitions.

ALL FAVORITES WIN AMATEUR GOLF MATCHES

TROON, Scotland, May 23—Battling a stiff wind, all the favorites, including Canada's Sandy Somerville, today survived the first round of match play for the British amateur golf championship.

All members of the United States Walker Cup team won their opening round tests, as did Robert Sweeny, American-born resident of London, who surprised by taking the 1937 title. Sweeny turned in a four and two triumph over J. R. Horden of England.

Somerville, the London, Ont. star, fought the cold, wind and rain squalls with low-flying iron shots and eliminated Geoffrey Illingworth of Woking, England, five and three.

In outstanding matches among the British forces, J. Morton Dykes, 1936 Walker cupper beat Andrew McNair two and one; Armour Matthews of South Africa turned back Andy Jamieson, 1927 Scottish champion, one up, and J. B. Stevenson, native of Troon and a local favorite, whipped Robert B. Foster five and four.

Sudeten Party Strength Increases During Sunday Vote as Frontier Guarded

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, May 23.—The Nazi-supported Sudeten German party increased its strength in Czechoslovakia's German communities Sunday as almost 500,000 Czech soldiers guarded the nation's 1,300-mile frontier facing Germany, anxious lest her territory be violated during municipal elections.

The vote, tensely watched throughout Europe as the vociferous German minority bid for power, resulted generally in a swing right in Germanic towns, a trend to the left in Czech communities and a sharp drop in communist votes.

Overshadowing international interest in the elections, which at most would change only local governing bodies, was the Sudeten party's renewed refusal to negotiate with the government over minority demands for autonomy.

Party leaders under Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten Fuehrer, said they would not negotiate "under the existing unconstitutional situation" in which Czech troops were stationed in Sudeten regions during the election crisis.

Among the 1,300 municipalities voting Sunday only 48 were pre-

Action By British Columbia May Also Be Adopted Here

Action the federal government is taking in British Columbia in returning single homeless men to the province where they resided prior to first receiving unemployment relief, will no doubt also be taken in Alberta, by the Dominion, as it is the Dominion policy that all provinces are entitled to privileges or assistance on an equal basis, A. A. McKenzie, director of the Alberta Bureau of Relief and Public Welfare, stated on Monday.

Mr. MacKenzie further state that "If the Dominion definitely decides to return men to their original province or domicile or to the province where they were last employed, it would relieve Alberta of a relief burden for which they have been assuming the major portion for the past few years and if the federal government takes such action, it is to be commended."

Mr. Mackenzie further stated that in checking single men's institu-

YOUTH SAVES YOUNG GIRL FROM DEATH

Presence Of Mind Of Arthur Pilon Averts Serious Accident

Cyclists figured in four of five traffic accidents in which persons were injured in the city over the week-end, police reported Monday, although in none of the accidents was anyone seriously injured.

Police praised the presence of mind of Arthur Pilon, 19, of 7745 Viewpoint boulevard, whose quick action undoubtedly saved 13-year-old Eugenie Gagnon, 10407 92 street, from serious injury and possible death.

Pilon was riding a bicycle west on Jasper avenue at 5 p.m. Sunday, with the little girl on the crossbar. Near the intersection of 93 street he turned out and passed an auto which was being driven west by Cecil Cameron, 10132 85 street.

PUSHED GIRL TO SAFETY

As Pilon attempted to cut back, the front wheel of his bicycle caught in the street car track, toppling both himself and the girl in front of the car. As he fell, Pilon

Nazi Hate For Czechs Prevails

CARLSBAD, May 23. — I have just completed a tour of over 100 miles along the German strip that is northwest Czechoslovakia, and while I saw no incidents of belligerency, the looks which the loitering crowds were exchanging with the troops guarding the polling booths with fixed bayonets were sufficient evidence of the emotions of hatred which prevail in this territory.

I have been in the Rhineland and other minority districts in race-torn Europe during critical periods, but I have never seen anything comparable to the contempt shown by the Sudeten Germans for their Czech governors.

The majority of the Sudetens to whom I spoke are convinced that Czechoslovakia will lose their homeland shortly and they make no attempt to hide their feelings.

WEAR WHITE SOX

Many of them wore white golf stockings, the forbidden emblem of Konrad Henlein's party and they also game the Hitler salute on every possible occasion with amused glances at the fuming soldiers who resent the Sudeten attitude utterly.

From Berlin to Prague took me twelve hours by automobile over a route which could be negotiated in less than six hours. On this occasion however all main roads in Czechoslovakia were blocked by troop movements and barbed wire barricades which sometimes forced a detour of fifty miles.

REMINISCENT OF 1917

Chinese Desperate, Bewildered in Face of Onrushing Jap Legions

WAR ARENA IS COVERED FROM AIR BY WRITER

Ghastly Picture Of Men Fighting and Dying Like Ants Unfolded

By ELMER W. PETERSON
WITH "THE JAPANESE ARMIES ON THE CENTRAL CHINA WAR FRONT, May 23—This correspondent witnessed the Chinese-Japanese war from the air Sunday. It was an unprecedented inspection, made from a Japanese war plane, which unfolded a ghastly picture of men fighting, dying and swarming like ants along dusty roads.

Flying over an area 25 miles long and 15 miles wide we saw evidence the Chinese were broken, desperate and bewildered. Below us here of onrushing Japanese legions.

FULL POSSESSION

Japanese troops were seen in full possession of the important railway junction of Suichow, the rising sun flag floated over the city and Japanese soldiers, tanks and trucks were everywhere. Sections of the city were blasted into ruins by artillery and air bombardment, but the damage did not appear as great as had been expected. The southern Presbyterian mission was intact.

From there we flew for two hours through the center of the battle zone where the Japanese say more than 500,000 Chinese are hopelessly trapped.

Japanese tanks were pursuing fleeing Chinese soldiers. There were puffs of smoke as machine guns mounted on the tanks poured bullets at the Chinese.

SIGNS OF WAR

Following the east-west Lunghai railway we saw signs of war. The anti-Pukow railway we saw signs of war on all sides. The scene was an interminable panorama of burned villages, smashed bridges, shell-marked farm houses and endless zigzag lines of trenches.

We did not see the widespread fighting 15 miles north of Suhsien, recently captured by the Japanese. Japanese soldiers could be seen from trucks in pursuit of Chinese vanishing and reappearing as they darted through the yellow clouds of dust. There was no longer trench warfare. It was open highway and field fighting, terrifying in its scope.

this summer. "There are men in Yellowknife from all parts of the world," he said. "Men who have prospected the Yukon, in Ontario in Sudbury, in Northern Alberta. Also there are youngsters who wouldn't know gold if you put it in your pocket."

STAKED 70 MILES

"Already they have staked claims for 70 miles along the Yellowknife River and nonetheless are coming in. The richest gold ever found in the Yellowknife is the richest that has ever been seen, and before the summer is over I expect that the Yellowknife will be recognized as one of the richest mining areas in the world."

Take this advice, young fellow—if you can scrape together enough money, go yourself or outfit a private prospector and if you don't quit whatever you are doing now and get up there and find yourself a fortune. That is, unless you are a rainbow-end-seek-and-find-it general prospector.

B.C. To Scout Peace Block For Oil Land

VICTORIA, May 23—The British Columbia government will proceed immediately with its plan to seek oil in the Peace River district by getting "the most eminent advice possible" and making preliminary examinations of the area, Premier Pattullo announced Saturday.

The survey of the Peace block will be made at once, he said, so as to leave season when the government proposes to ask for funds to drill for oil, the premier said.

"We will then have reached conclusions where it is most advisable to start our operations," he said.

At 8 p.m. Sunday, John Thomas Sullivan, 10, of 11115 67 street, was knocked unconscious when he fell under the wheels of a heavy oil truck. Police said the truck was being driven south on 66 street, when a car, driven by Mrs. Lena Anderson, 9, ran through the 111 avenue intersection in front of the truck. The car struck the boy, then swerved off and the rider to the street and passed over them both. The car, police said, was damaged, but the boy was not touched as the heavy truck rolled over his prostrate form. Sullivan's only injuries were slight abrasions.

At 5 p.m. Saturday, while riding a push bike on McDougall Avenue, Nelly Kuzik, of the Emerald Apartments, lost control, and the machine crashed into a pole at the foot of the 97 street viaduct. The girl fell and she was knocked unconscious. She was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist. Her injuries are not serious.

At 8 p.m. Saturday a bicycle ridden by T. F. Hall, 12541 129 street, crashed into Fireman's Pool at the intersection of 127 street and 128 avenue. Hall suffered bruises but was not seriously injured, police reported.

At 2 p.m. Saturday Charles Nixon, 4 Knoxford Place, a truck driver, was driven by Ralph Williamson, 11234.96 street, at the intersection of 96 street and 128 avenue. He sustained a cut on his head that required two stitches.

Chore boy of the family travelled more than 200,000 miles by motorcar with his master, Elmer Killaby, and learned to guard the car when parked. Killaby left Dinty in the car and, Dinty were left at a garage for repairs. The job was delayed. Attendants tried to send the dog home but he refused to go.

A garage man called Killaby on the telephone and asked him to speak to the dog. The receiver was placed at the animal's ear and the command by his master "Come on home" was all that was needed. He was off like a shot to the family residence.

Dinty knew all sorts of tricks and had a pack of friends. He attended hockey games and his barks mingled with the human cheers.

When the family moved home and found the family absent, he would set off to find them and was usually right the first time.

ALBERTA MAY SEND JOBLESS TO OWN HOMES

tions in this province, the first four hours of checking reveal that Alberta has been providing relief for over 500 single, homeless men, whose domicile was in the province of Ontario where they had never been gainfully employed and who had drifted to Alberta subsequent to 1931 and during a greater portion of that time had been receiving relief, which has been paid by the taxpayers of Alberta.

He said that eastern provinces, including Ontario and Quebec, make no provision for single, homeless, unemployed and there is little doubt but that the majority of single, homeless men now being cared for in western Canada, came from the east and "I feel sure that neither Mr. Hepburn, nor Mr. Duplessis would want the impoverished west to bear their burdens."

GUARANTEED INTEREST ACT HELD INVALID

clared legislation by the provincial government with respect to guaranteed securities ultra vires of the legislative powers of the province. The Provincial Securities Interest Act, 1936, was declared ultra vires by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives and the legislation now declared ultra vires was re-enacted to take its place. This was declared unconstitutional by Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing.

In his judgment, Chief Justice Horace Harvey held that the Provincially Guaranteed Securities Proceedings Act must be declared ultra vires because in its true pith and substance and character it was not proper legislation under the property and civil rights and administration of justice clauses of the British North America Act, but was in its purpose and effect auxiliary to legislation already respecting interest and must fall with it.

DENIED COURT ACCESS

The Provincially Guaranteed Securities Act denied to creditors access to the courts for the purpose of the recovery of any money due in respect of any guaranteed security and, in the opinion of the Lieut.-Governor in Council.

Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray in his judgment held that the Guaranteed Securities Proceedings Act was but part of a legislative scheme of which the Provincial enactment which the provincial legislature was without legislative authority to enact. It was not just a denial of access to creditors except upon condition, but was a frank defiance of the legislative powers of provincial legislatures as fixed and determined at the time of Confederation.

"If the legislature having passed an interest act which has been held to be ultra vires may now re-enact it and make it valid by the simple expedient of denying access to the courts for those who seek the benefits of the interest monies which the ultra vires act created them, then the whole scheme of Confederation may be set at naught at the will of the provincial legislature," the judgment continues.

In Mr. Justice McGillivray's opinion both acts under review should be read together. They deal with the subject matter, as a subject committed to the exclusive legislative care of the dominion quite as surely as if they were one enactment, and so must be declared ultra vires of the Alberta legislature.

DISSENTING JUDGMENT

Mr. Justice Frank Ford in his dissenting judgment held that the Provincially Guaranteed Securities Proceedings act was not a "colorable attempt to do something which the provincial legislature did not the power to do. He did not think that the decision in "In re Insurance Act of Canada, 1932" should be extended, was followed by the majority of the court, afforded a parallel to the case at bar. In that case, he argued, it was clear there was a colorable use of the criminal code, and of the power to legislate as to aliens. No intention to use or dominate the exercise of the business of insurance the regulation of which had been declared to be exclusively subject to provincial law.

BRITISH-U.S. TRADE PACT CUTS TARIFFS

Preferences Will Be Lowered Throughout United Kingdom

WASHINGTON, May 23—The forthcoming Anglo-American trade agreement will cut into Great Britain's preferential tariff agreement with her Dominions, United States officials said today.

The Ottawa agreement negotiated in 1932 gave preferential treatment to Dominion farm products in Britain's market place and to British factory goods in the Dominion markets.

The American trade agreement with the United Kingdom and another agreement being negotiated simultaneously with Canada will materially lower these preferences, officials predicted.

Reductions are almost certain on a wide variety of fruits, particularly apples, as well as on lumber and foodstuffs.

The United States in return is considering reductions on leather and leather goods and on textiles. Tariff cuts on American tobacco are doubtful because of Britain's efforts to develop her own tobacco brands.

Existence of Particle Smaller Than Electron Discovered in Study

LOST ENERGY LEADING CLUE TO NEUTRINO

Young Scientists At University Of Michigan Trace Activity

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 23— Proof of the existence of the neutrino, a particle of matter much smaller than the electron, has been found by two young University of Michigan scientists, H. Richard Crane and Julius Halpern. Crane is a physics instructor and Halpern was until recently a research physicist at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Certain scientific groups have argued a neutrino must exist to account for the disappearance of energy in the atom under the process of disintegration. Another school, led by Prof. G. E. M. Jauncey, of George Washington University, St. Louis, contends the missing energy is hidden in the electron which leaves the atom as it disintegrates. Each atom is made up of a nucleus of protons surrounded by one or more electrons and when it undergoes bombardment, one of the electrons is emitted from the atom, changing its composition.

NEUTRINO ESCAPES

Crane and Halpern worked from the fact the separate electrons of an atom do not quite add up to the atom as a whole, and advanced the neutrino theory, that the neutrino, a particle so small as to be indivisible to any observational technique yet devised, escapes during the smashing process.

Using the University's Cycloiron, or "atom-smasher," and the Wilson cloud chamber, they found "Nuclear Kicks" far too large to be caused by the electron, and which could be interpreted only as indicating that an invisible particle of high energy had escaped.

PHOTOGRAPH PATHS

By putting a gaseous compound of radio-active chlorine into the cloud chamber, which operates by condensing droplets of vapor on the atoms and electrons as they move about, the two scientists were able to photograph, not the particles themselves, but their paths and movements by their action on the vapor. Thus they were able to measure the recoil of the nucleus when it became a new atom by ejecting the electron, tracing the course of the nucleus, never before observed.

If sustained, the new experiments showing the existence of the neutrino may lead to new discoveries in the field of atomic theory, cosmic radiation and light. It has been suggested it hit consists of neutrinos travelling in pairs.

In any event, the title of smallest unit is held by an invisible particle many times lighter than the electron itself. According to Halpern and Crane, the neutrino itself, remain invisible until a new observational technique is devised.

ACREAGE CUT SAID PROJECTED FOR NEXT YEAR

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials indicated Saturday that, if the United States Congress approved the $212,000,000 farm benefit fund the Senate appropriations committee has added to the bill, it would be used to induce a drastic reduction in 1939 wheat plantings, if present prospects for the 1938 crop materialize.

A. A. officials have expressed belief that other funds now available under the $500,000,000 soil conservation subsidy program would be insufficient to "compensate" wheat growers adequately for participation in the prospective acreage reduction for 1939.

The 1939 wheat program, to be announced in July, is expected to propose that plantings be reduced from the 80,000,000 acres seeded for this year's crop to 50,000,000 acres or less. Thus, individual farmers would be asked to reduce their operations 37 per cent, or possibly more.

Knife Wounds Said Result Of Calgary Fight

CALGARY, May 23.—Victim of a street quarrel, John Kneiss, suffering from back and scalp wounds inflicted by a knife, was in hospital today. Elmer Phillips, colored, who had a badly cut hand, was in jail charged with stabbing Kneiss. Taken from his cell to have his hand dressed, Phillips told police "a man stabbed me."

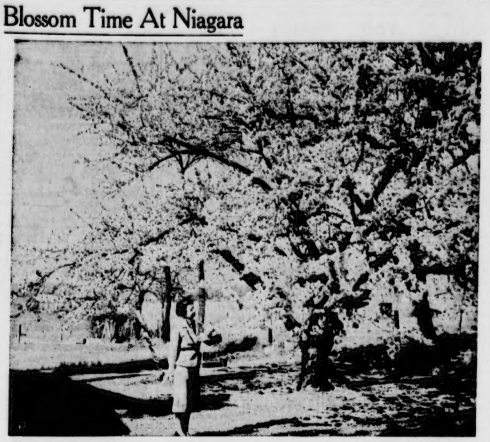

The quarrel, police said, occurred in east Calgary early Saturday.

Minimum Price For Wheat Seen

WEYBURN, Sask., May 23.—Announcement of the federal government that the wheat board would operate and that a guaranteed minimum price would be set with respect to this year's crop, was seen by Premier W. J. Patterson, here Saturday night, as complementary to the provincial government's definite pledge to provide, if returned to power, adequate safeguards for the farmers' interests in the proceeds of the crop if there is one.

Together, these actions would protect the farmer against any eventuality in world markets and against undue pressure for collections on the part of the creditor class, he said.

SOCIAL CREDIT WILL TRIUMPH MANNING SAYS

Is Sweeping Saskatchewan Like Prairie Fire Audience Told

"Saskatchewan is going Social Credit—and how," Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry declared in the course of an address before the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference at the Strand theatre on Sunday evening.

Devoting some time to the Saskatchewan situation from which he had just returned from surveying the minister declared that "During the past week numerous mass meetings have been held to which people have come for miles. At the major points, the Premier has been greeted by audiences of from 3,000 to 4,500.

WANT NEW DEAL

"Social Credit is sweeping the province like a prairie fire. The people are hungry for information. Burdened with debt, sick and tired of old party politics and longing for a new and square deal for each and all, they are anxious to learn everything possible about the Social Credit proposals for economic security and freedom.

"Despite the premature date for which the election has been set, arrangements have been made to complete a program which will give one or more mass meetings in each constituency by the end of next week. At the close of each mass meeting the Social Crediters are being asked to suggest the names of straightforward, sincere men who will be the Social Credit standard bearers in the election. The spirit of the whole crusade reveals a sincere and fervent desire to get away from the old political racket and the old dog eat dog system and to have in its place an administration in which sincere, earnest men will fight fearlessly to implement the will of the citizens of Saskatchewan in their united demands for economic security and freedom. Mere change of party is not enough. Saskatchewan citizens, like Albertans, want and demand and will vote for a change in system."

SERIES OF MEETINGS

The minister announced a series of meetings for the next week.

In commencing his address, Mr. Manning said that "Each occasion when we come to this part of our program, it is with a deeper realization of the many mutual ties which bind us together as one great band of crusaders against those things which oppress and enslave us.

"I cannot help but feel that the citizens of Alberta and I think now that I should link with them the citizens of Saskatchewan—I cannot help but feel that the people of these two great western provinces are today leading the civilized world in a living, active example of true unity in a struggle for the good of each and all.

"For years provinces, countries and nations have suffered and groaned under the oppression of financial tyranny and economic bondage. The welfare of society has been overridden by the vices of selfishness, greed and love of power. Is it surprising that people are fed up and disgruntled with the whole thing? Is it hard to understand why thousands in this progressive western country have come to the place where they have said, 'Let's end this unnecessary suffering, privation and worry once and for all.'

JOIN HANDS

"Let's join hands as fellow creatures living in the same world and confronted with the same problems and through the power of our association peacefully, but firmly and positively demand that from this time on our standard of living and our material enjoyments shall be limited only by the ability to produce the things we need and not by artificial financial barriers imposed by the will of the money monopolists in their own selfish interests.

"Is it surprising that the worthy resolution of our people is being acclaimed far and wide throughout the country and is daily winning the support of thousands far and near."

Mr. Manning read several letters from Quebec, Tasmania and England, all expressing interest in the work being done here by the Social Credit movement and the significance of its meaning.

JOURNAL ATTACKED

Continuing, Mr. Manning attacked the Edmonton Journal.

In delivering his attack, Mr. Manning said that "In contrast to these sincere expressions of kindly support for the efforts of our people on behalf of their fellows, stands out the headlines of an article which appeared on the front page of the Edmonton Journal last Friday afternoon."

He then directed attention to a story which told of the London Times urging the Dominion government to disallow some recently passed Alberta bills.

CONTROLS POLICY

Commenting on this, Mr. Manning said: "I wonder in whose behalf the London Times is speaking. It seems to me the Journal would have rendered its readers a service if it published a little information for the management of the Times. For example, the debt-ridden population of western Canada might be interested to know that the governor of the London Times who practically controls its policy in regard to financial matters, is none other than Mr. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. It is also interesting to note that Mr. Montagu Norman's brother is chairman of the board of control of the British Broadcasting Corporation. It would appear that the outstanding sources of information available to the people in the Old Country are very much a family affair of the Bank of England. That is what is known as the freedom of the press, which the Journal so vigorously defends: free to do what finance dictates irrespective of the welfare of the common people. How long do these organizations and institutions think the people of Canada will tolerate such mockery?"

British and French Are Said Strongest Power

LEEDS, Eng., May 23—British and French fighting potentialities, mastery of the seas and financial superiority make them incomparably stronger than the "aggressor nations," the French minister of justice, Paul Reynaud, warned here last night at a banquet of the Alliance Francaise.

Reynaud, one of the leading centrists of the French chamber of deputies, who has been conferring in London with British government leaders, warned a the same time the links between Great Britain and France are so vital neither could survive without the other.

He urged that they should match the totalitarian states in rearmament so as to prove the futility of that course, and then join with them in the reconstruction of Europe for peace.

MEMBERS 31ST BATTALION IN REUNION HERE

Annual Banquet and Get-Together Held Saturday Night

Fully 50 members of the 31st Battalion, the Alberta Regiment, which served in France as one of the regiments of the famous Sixth Brigade of the 2nd Canadian Division, gathered at their annual banquet and get-together at the Royal George hotel on Saturday evening.

Round the banquet table these veterans of many of the toughest engagements fought in France, recalled old days "up the line."

As part of the "Iron Sixth" Brigade, the boys recalled their halcyon days in the craters at St. Eloi. They recalled that tempestuous time in the capture of Hill 70 when the Germans came back with no fewer than 22 counter-attacks. They recalled Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele and many other of the famous battles in which the Canadian Corps won undying glory.

ANNUAL ELECTION

In connection with the festivities, the annual election of officers took place.

William Jones was elected president, in succession to M. B. McColl. E. B. H. Shaver was elected treasurer and Archibald Baptie was elected secretary.

An executive of six was elected. Songs were given by William Townend and Edward Sturrock, while old-time songs, reminiscent of the war, were sung by the gathering as a whole.

DYDE GUEST SPEAKER

H. A. Dyde, president of the Canadian Corps association, Edmonton branch, was the guest speaker.

He also brought greetings from the 50th Batt., a sister Alberta regiment.

He also dealt with the Canadian Corps reunion, to take place at Toronto this summer and there will be a special gathering of old 31st men.

R. D. Hannah was named as the delegate of the Edmonton branch of the 31st Batt. Association to attend the Corps reunion.

Chamberlain, Man Of Many Troubles, Faces Criticisms

By GLANVILLE CAREW
British United Press Cable. Special to The Bulletin.
Exclusive to The Bulletin

LONDON May 23.—"Our prime minister is a man of many troubles. His worries are great and his vicisitudes numerous. In face of a campaign of criticism against his administration with the air ministry as the focus of the attack he got rid of Lord Swinton," writes George Malcolm Thomson in the Evening-Standard.

"Premier Chamberlain made the change at a moment when he should not have made it and at a moment when every argument drawn from political wisdom favored standing fast and refusing to alter his cabinet dispositions.

"Now it will be said that the premier yielded to outside influences and this will be interpreted as a symptom of his weakness as prime minister. This is the second occasion during his premiership on which he has at first taken a strong defiant attitude and then suddenly laid down his arms.

"He did so last year over the national defence contribution tax. On that occasion he yielded to Lord Horne and this time he gives in to Winston Churchill.

"It will be said that a prime minister who yielded twice can be made to yield a third time, and already you can hear disparaging remarks about Mr. Chamberlain among the Conservatives.

"It is true that Winston Churchill, the effective leader of the attack on Lord Swinton, is dangerous only to the premier as a propagandist. In that capacity he can do great damage to the government, for as a propagandist Winston Churchill has great ability and endless pertinacity.

IS INGENIOUS

"He is ingenious, but he is not the alternative as a premier. So deeply is he committed to his anti-German viewpoint that his accession to Prime Minister Chamberlain's throne would put an end to all hope both for negotiations with the German nation looking to preserve world peace.

"Indeed even his appointment to high office under Mr. Chamberlain would have the same effect.

"But more serious danger to Prime Minister Chamberlain lies in another quarter. It is in the personage of Sir Anthony Eden.

EDEN DECLINES

"No doubt he was asked to join the government in the last few days, but if so invited he has declined, and in remaining outside the government he is a source of peril to the premier, for at any moment a twist in the events in Europe might place him in a position of great advantage with the public here. There are some who say Eden will yet be prime minister of Great Britain."

Diefenbaker Even Favors Province Union

PENZANCE, Sask., May 23 — John G. Diefenbaker, K.C., youthful leader of Saskatchewan Conservatives, declared in a Saskatchewan election campaign speech here Saturday night that "if necessary I stand in favor of one government for the three prairie provinces."

Noting Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, was on his way west, Mr. Diefenbaker said the federal minister would tell them "why he destroyed the wheat board, why he destroyed the natural products marketing act, and why he allowed the price of machinery to rise."

Man Is Found Killed By Gas In Automobile

BLAIRMORE, May 23. — In an automobile filled with deadly monoxide fumes, Fred Chardon, 70, Cardston pioneer, was found dead Sunday. In the car was a length of rubber hose running from the exhaust pipe.

The body was found by a brother, Paul Chardon, when he entered a garage where the car was parked. Coroner F. J. Turner, who announced there would be no inquest, said the pioneer had been dead about two hours.

Friends reported Chardon had been ill and despondent since last fall when his wife died at Fernie, B.C. Her body was brought to Cardston for burial two weeks ago.

Asama Erupts

TOKYO May 23—Mount Asama, an active volcano about 90 miles northwest of Tokyo, burst into eruption Saturday. Ashes fell in districts around the foot of the mountain but no serious damage was reported.

BOYS REPORT MEN FORCED THEM DRINK

DOMINION, N. S., May 23. — Three men were held for questioning by police of this Cape Breton county town last night after a search party had found two young boys in the woods near here allegedly unconscious from the effects of liquor they had been forced to drink.

Police Chief Dan Murno said four boys had been playing near a dam Sunday when they stumbled on a drinking party. The men seized them and threatened to throw them into the water unless they drank some of the liquor, it was alleged.

The two oldest, aged 12, escaped, but the two younger boys became confused when they were released and wandered in the wrong direction into the woods.

The "24th"

The small boy with his fire-crackers will be much in evidence tomorrow, to the amusement or annoyance—as the case may be—of the grownups who many years age established the tradition that exploding these toy bombs was the one adequate and fitting way to celebrate the birthday of Queen Victoria. May discretion and good luck watch over him, to the end that there may be no lacerated fingers or burned homes to mar the day.

The older folks will also need the kindly attention of these twin guardians, perhaps even more. For the 24th has become an occasion for all who can do so to get out of the city, roam the highways, visit the lakes, picnic in the open, and generally revel in the return of the outdoor season. And one cannot forget that the newspapers of the 25th sometimes carry harrowing reports of holiday accidents. May there be none of these in the papers on Wednesday.

Get the Works Going

The situation in Vancouver points the timeliness of supplementary estimates brought down at Ottawa providing $40,000,000 for work projects. A similar amount included in the main estimates makes a fund of $80,000,000 available for highway and other work-making undertakings. Obviously the appropriations cannot be made and the works put in hand too soon.

The condition in Vancouver is more tense than in other centres in the west, but not essentially different. In all these centres there are varying numbers of idle single men for whom regular employment is not in sight. And thousands of married men with the same empty prospect.

Argument about the effectiveness or non-effectiveness of public works as absorbers of idle labor is interesting enough, and there has been plenty of it. But here is a condition to be faced, and faced at once. And the only apparent way to face it promptly is to start highway-construction or other kinds of public works and put as many of the idle men as can be accommodated on the jobs.

Parliament should lose no time in making the money available, and the department no time in arranging the program and getting the work projects under way. Any speech-making that may be thought necessary or appropriate can be done just as well when the men are working.

Empire Day

The year that has gone must surely have brought to thoughtful people in all the British nations a deepened sense of their peculiar good fortune in being citizens of an Empire in which they govern themselves, and which is strong enough in their united strength to guarantee them the continued enjoyment of that right.

Fewer of the world's residents are their own masters now than were a year ago. In Spain popular government is being trampled to death under the heel of alien Fascism. Austrian independence has been struck down by force. Ethiopia has been blotted formally from the list of nations and its people are serfs of foreign masters. In China millions have passed under the rule of the invader.

No British territory has been ravaged. No British citizen has lost his civil rights or his political liberty to an aggressor. Where the flag flies there is freedom and security against the rampant militarism of Europe and the Orient. In Canada, as in the other dominions, we continue to make our own laws, set our own standards, shape our own policies, follow our own ideals; and order our own lives.

This immunity from aggression that Britishers have enjoyed was not of course just a matter of luck, or forbearance on the part of the war-makers. Nothing would suit the aggressors better than to pull the Empire to pieces and distribute its territory and resources. The only reason they haven't tried is that they suspect they would not succeed. So long as the British nations keep the dictators in that healthy state of mind they will be left alone. But no longer.

The Doubts of Il Duce

Premier Mussolini doubts that he will make a truce with France, because "In Spain we are on opposite sides of the barricades." This the world knows is not true; though the Genoa readers of Il Duce's kept press probably know no better. It was to them he spoke. They, likely enough, think French troops are fighting on the Government side, as Italian troops are doing the fighting for Franco. Why control the newspapers of a country if not to use them to deceive the readers?

France has honorably kept the terms of the ill-starred non-intervention agreement. Mussolini has not even pretended to. He has supplied Franco with men, munitions and money, boasted about doing it, and used his dominance in Spain as the trump card when he wanted to wheedle a bargain out of Mr. Chamberlain.

Having got this bargain, the wily Duce has been in no hurry to deal with France. He probably supposed he had broken the London-Paris axis, or secured a lever with which he could pry the democracies apart. With Britain "appeased" and France isolated, why should he flout Hitler by dealing with France?

Fortunately, if true, the British ambassador at Rome is reported to have seen the dodge and told Count Ciano the Italo-British pact is worthless without an Italo-French pact. If the British Government stands pat on that proposition, Il Duce will dismiss his doubts and make an agreement with France; leaving Adolf to speculate on the significance of the dagger with which Benito presented him on his recent visit to Rome.

Editorial Notes

The Chamberlain Government has won a by-election. In the circumstances that is news.

What they seem to need in some parts of southern Alberta is an irrigation system that will work both ways.

The Doukhobors around Nelson should be happy now. Parliament has decided they are not to be afflicted with the franchise they don't want. Whoever named them "The Peculiar People" was right.

Alberta's relief commissioner has the right idea of strategy. Faced by a threat that some hundreds of unemployed men may be sent to Alberta from Vancouver, he appealed to the Dominion for help in taking care of the thousands already here.

Congratulations to Piper Tom Reid, member of parliament for New Westminster. His "hardy annual" demand has been granted, and millfeed will move from prairie points to the coast at rates no higher than feed grain. Hon. H. H. Stevens dissenting, a little more of the same brand of Scotch persistence at Ottawa in respect to other and more important subjects would do no harm.

A Back-Fire

There is much for western Canadians to think about in the remarks of Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith, British M.P., and closely identified with agriculture in Britain, to the Regina Canadian club.

Sir Reginald said that the Dominions should realize that the market for Dominion produce in the British market was not illimitable. In fact, he made it rather plain that the British farmer was of the opinion he should have more of the British home market. He also said that the Dominions could not go on expecting to hold the British market for Dominion agricultural produce unless there was heavier buying of British goods by the Dominions.

"The Dominions can't have it both ways," said Sir Reginald. "They can't take less and less of our manufactured goods and sell us more and more agricultural products."

Canadians will remember that a few years ago there was pressure on Britain by ardent tariff people in Canada to have Britain impose higher tariffs on goods entering the United Kingdom. The theory was that Britain should put a tariff against foreign goods and then lower it to permit the Dominions to have a preference.

Finally the day came when Great Britain walked away from free trade and went in for tariffs.

But British farmers rather like tariffs. They are not opposed to having more of them. If they benefit because foreign products find it more difficult to get into Britain they can see benefits to themselves in also having barriers put up against produce from the Dominion.—Regina Leader-Post.

The Amalgamation Drive

The case presented by the advocates of railway amalgamation is extremely vulnerable. The Free Press, having drawn public attention to this, has incurred the high displeasure of the Montreal Gazette, which is unkind enough to suggest that the newspaper makes "misleading" statements and indulges in "unwarranted and untrue inferences."

A few other statements of the Gazette are worth noting. "There is no drive for railway amalgamation, financial or otherwise," it says. Why does the Montreal newspaper make that denial? Everyone who knows what has been going on in Canada in recent years knows that the campaign for amalgamation is a drive of tremendous power. The evidence of it is overwhelming—in the activities of the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the allies of that company, in the flood of propaganda in favor of a merging of the railways, in the covert, supporting campaign in regard to public debt and taxation, and in the straining to enlist the support of various organizations of business men. The Gazette protests too much when it says there is no drive. It simply indicates its own relation to it.

It even goes so far as to claim that there are no ulterior motives behind the campaign for unification. It is purely for the sake of the public interest and for the good of the country that Sir Edward Beatty has been addressing meetings from coast to coast, that his advocacy of amalgamation has been repeatedly broadcast on the air and his speeches published in pamphlet form and distributed by the thousand. Even if our contemporary thinks the promotion of such an insistent, determined, high-pressure campaign by the private company and its friends, without strong motives of self-interest, would be a trifle unusual?

What the Free Press has been saying is that the talk of saving $75,000,000 a year through unification is gross misrepresentation, used because that simple, concrete idea is calculated to make an effective appeal. The operating costs of the two railways have fallen from $483,000,000 in 1929 to $302,000,000 last year. The saving that might have been made in 1930 certainly could not be made now. Judge Fullerton, former chairman of the Board of the C.N.R., who was thoroughly familiar with the railway situation and whose opinion on the possible saving through amalgamation is worth more than that of those who are anxiously desirous of securing amalgamation, declared that it would not be more than $15,000,000. It is to be remembered, also, that all proposals for abandoning mileage or eliminating competent services would have to be approved by the Transport Board, which would consider each effect upon the people now served by those railway lines. The various proposals might or might not be approved.

If the C.P.R. did not wish to eliminate the C.P.R., its strong competitor, and only sought to prevent waste and loss to both railways from duplicate services, why did it not use the opportunity which it had for effecting those economies through co-operation with the C.N.R., as recommended by the Duff Commission? Sir Edward Beatty told the commission that $6,340,000 could be saved in this way. But he has had no enthusiasm for it, and the two railways have only agreed on economies totalling some $1,700,000. Sir Edward prefers amalgamation.

The reference to railway consolidations in Great Britain affords no real argument for amalgamation in Canada. Savings of $125,000,000 to $225,000,000 a year were promised, but this has proved largely a disappointment. Competition in railway service continues on a large scale, and there is nothing like the complete railway monopoly under private control that has been proposed in Canada.

In the publication drive there has been constant reference to the C.N.R. as having been enormously costly to the country, and an implied, if not cultivated, suggestion that, with amalgamation, the country would be relieved of the load. That is not true. A large part of the Government's railway obligations that are listed up would still be carried by the Government and the people of Canada.

A great attempt is made to sweeten the pill of railway monopoly, free from Government control. There is no such thing in any country and there is not likely to be, for reasons given by Sir Edward Beatty himself and by the Duff Commission. In a former day, Sir Edward told of the difficulty of providing efficient service if railway employees had not something to measure their efforts against. The Commission saw the possibility of monopoly powers, if not properly exercised, prejudicing the interests of the Dominion.

Besides drawing attention to these matters, the Free Press has said that the prospects of the railways are reasonably hopeful and that there is no need to talk of amalgamation. Sir Edward, in addressing the C.P.R. shareholders a few days ago, took a generally hopeful view, with reference to the likelihood of a period of good crops in the west and the resulting benefit to the railways.

In that connection, it is worth remarking that last year, when the west had the poorest crop in nearly twenty years, the gross earnings of the railways were only $343,000,000; while in 1928, with the record crop of $66,000,000 bushels of wheat for all Canada, the gross earnings of the railways also reached the peak of $563,000,000. The crop is not everything, but it helps mightily. There is a brighter day ahead for the railways. —Winnipeg Free Press.

Your Health

By DR. FRANK McCOY

In the last few days I have received quite a number of letters from former asthma sufferers who have written to tell me of the good results they have obtained through following the general guidance I provide regarding the method to use in banishing this disorder.

Most of these correspondents enclosed the names of friends and relatives to whom they wish me to send information similar to that which they have received and which has been of so much benefit.

It is remarkable what a high percentage of cases of this disorder can be helped through a simple home treatment. The number who find relief really depends upon the number who follow instructions exactly as given. Many asthmatics who read this statement the first time, doubt its truth, owing to the fact that they have decided their trouble is incurable. I do not blame some asthmatics for believing their cases hopeless after they have tried so many different remedies; however, I wish to assure my readers that many of those now suffering with asthma could find relief through following the methods I advocate, and that the treatment is simple enough to be understood by any schoolboy.

I find that in all cases of asthma, the underlying causes are essentially the same. There is always some restriction present interfering with the diaphragm, and there is also usually a formation of excessive quantities of mucus in the bronchial tubes.

The feeling of suffocation and tightness in the chest experienced by the asthmatic is there simply because something is interfering with breathing. Usually this interference takes the form of an obstruction of the diaphragm or breathing muscle and usually the diaphragm is handicapped in its action either because of poor development, or because of the pressure of excessive amounts of gas.

A stomach which is distended from overeating may of course produce a temporary pressure, but in the chronic cases there is generally a tendency to flatulence which still further retards the action of a poorly functioning diaphragm.

There are many contributing causes which may precipitate the attack. The patient's sensitiveness to certain kinds of food; the breathing in of an irritating substance from pollens, upholstered furniture, or certain kinds of pillows; and the retarding influence of moist climates upon skin elimination—these must all be considered contributing causes and in my opinion are secondary to the main or principal causes I have already described.

The diagnosis of asthma is usually not difficult. The word asthma comes from the Greek, meaning "to blow or to pant." During the attack the patient literally pants for air. In addition there may be produced a characteristic wheezing sound.

I find that the rapidity with which the patient secures relief from the attacks depends to some extent upon how much of a tendency there is for the bronchial tubes to throw out excess mucus. These cases with little or moderate mucus secretion will usually respond very quickly and breathing comes back to normal within three or four days after the dieting regimen is started. When the bronchial tubes have become such good eliminative organs that they secrete considerable amounts of mucus, recovery generally takes place at a slower rate.

Questions And Answers

QUESTION—Miss D. D. writes: "I feel that I owe you a letter of thanks to let you know that after following your suggestions for overcoming insomnia, I discovered that all my troubles are over. I am able to go to sleep and usually stay that way. Only a person who has been a victim of sleeplessness for years can know how great is my relief. Now for a question for my Aunt: Are all lumps in the breast cancerous?"

ANSWER: I am pleased to know that you have been able to banish the tendency to insomnia. The breast may be the site of both benign and malignant tumors—therefore all lumps in the breast are not cancerous. On an average, it has been found that the benign tumors develop about the age of 36, while the malignant tumors develop when the patient is about 49 years old. It is always advisable that a patient noticing any lump or swelling of the breast report to her doctor at once.

QUESTION—Martin W. inquires: "Have you any articles on skin disorders? I have acne and my older sister has eczema. We would send for the articles if we thought you had them ready."

ANSWER: Here is a partial list of some of the material on skin disorders: Eczema (Adults); Eczema in Babies; Acne; Athlete's Foot; Pruritis (or itching of the skin); boils. Any reader desiring any article is welcome to send for it by writing to me and enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

QUESTION—Mrs. T. L. wants to know: "My little girl refuses to drink water but likes plenty of fruits, salads and cooked vegetables. Should I force her to take the water?"

ANSWER: The foods you mention would provide an abundance of liquid. Possibly she does not need any extra water.

Old Country Letter

LONDON, Eng. (By Mail)—Eighteen hundred performers from all over the British Isles will take part in an all-British Royal Command concert at the Albert Hall on Empire Day. The concert will be in aid of musical charities.

It is understood that Parry's famous setting of Blake's "Jerusalem" will be sung. "Jerusalem" seems to be on the way to becoming a sort of second national anthem. The words are appropriate in these days when a great effort is being made to substitute decent housing conditions for people whom the hard industrialism of the nineteenth century had condemned to slum dwellings.

J. E. NORCROSS

"I will not cease from Mental Fight
Nor shall my Sword sleep in my hand
Till we have built Jerusalem
In England's green and pleasant land."

sang Blake, who hated the "dark Satanic mills" of the north.

"Jerusalem" was a favorite with King George V. When the Silver Jubilee Command concert was given at the Albert Hall, both he and Queen Mary expressed a hope that they would hear the song on that occasion. It was not on the program, however.

"I love that tune," said the King to Sir Walford Davies, Master of the King's Music. "If they don't sing it I'll stand up and whistle it myself."

An impromptu performance was hastily arranged at the end of the concert.

King George disliked encores and they were nearly always banned at Command performances.

A Day in Canadian History

By FRED WILLIAMS

Fifty years ago today (May 23, 1888), Sir Charles Tupper was appointed high commissioner in London. He had been in London as "acting H.C." for five years, but had returned to Canada to help Sir John Macdonald in the elections of 1887 and in the negotiations over Canadian Pacific finances. After the elections had returned Sir John, Sir Charles decided that it would be well for him to go back to London, the truth probably being that he preferred the semi-diplomatic status in London to the hurly-burly of Canadian politics.

But he did not go back without an interesting incident. Sir John asked Sir Charles to stay in Canada, but he declined. Sir George Stephen, then president of the C.P.R., went to Ottawa and told Tupper that it was his duty to stay in Canada so that if "anything happened to Sir John I ought to be chosen as his successor." Still Tupper balked. Then Stephen wrote a letter to the same effect which was shown to Sir John Macdonald. The old man sent for Sir Charles: "If you will only consent to remain I will publicly recognize you as my successor," he told Tupper.

"But," retorted Sir Charles, "you have already made pledges to Sir Hector Langevin. When you were in difficulties over the execution of Louis Riel you told Langevin that he would be your successor if he succeeded in retaining the support of the French Canadian Conservatives."

"If you will only agree to stay," persisted Sir John, "I will send for Langevin and the rest of the cabinet and designate you as my successor. Langevin, I am sure, will be agreeable."

Tupper was firm in his refusal. He told Sir John it would be good politics to have a French Canadian as his successor (as was done in the province of Canada when Macdonald and Cartier alternated) and a compromise was reached by which Sir Charles went back to the high commissioner's office and was replaced in the cabinet by Young Charlie," later Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper.

But after Sir John's death Langevin was retired in disgrace because of his share in the corruptness of the Quebec hatchet job fund when Sir Charles did come back to become prime minister in May, 1896, it was too late to save the Conservative party and he went down to defeat.

Yet by all rights of fair play he should have succeeded Sir John in 1891, for without Charles Tupper there could have been no confederation and no Dominion of Canada.

When is a statue to him to be placed on Parliament Hill alongside Macdonald and Cartier? It is long overdue.

Farm Mortgages

Editor, Bulletin: According to government statistics, about six out of seven of the farms are under mortgage. And that means that there are so many farmers who do not own any land at all. As so many are simply tenants to a mortgage company. And paying rent every year, under the name of interest.

And loan companies do not loan money on land unless there are improvements on it. The land plus the improvements on it constituta a farm. A person may own land, and rent it out to a loan or trust companies advance money on farms, but not on land merely. So that there are so many farmers who own neither land nor the improvements on land, as they are paying rent every year to a mortgage company, for the use of the land and then interest for the use of the improvements. So it is easily seen that farmers, as a class, own very little, except the chance to work hard, and produce money from the soil, and then hand that money over

Third Rockefeller Studies Youth in Prison

PRISONERS OF JUNIOR YEARS SAID HARMED

Fortune Heir is Accompanied by Sociologist in Social Study

By JOHN LEAR

Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, May 23.—A tall fellow who spent parts of three years on a tour of prisons listening to the troubles of youths behind the bars has been identified as John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, namesake-grandson of "the richest man in the world."

The identification came from Mr. Rockefeller himself. He gave it reluctantly, for he has been self-effacing in his effort to help boys and girls find the road back from crime.

"It is the work that is important," he said with an earnest smile.

"The work," he related enthusiastically, is directed first at changing the philosophy and methods of the existing system and second at making good citizens of those who are caught in the toils.

WENT TO PRISON

To reform prisons, it is necessary to know something about them. So Rockefeller, 32-year-old h.ir to America's biggest fortune, went to prison.

His views on what he saw and heard the Rockefeller heir keeps to himself, for he considers himself no expert. He realizes he only "scratched the surface" of prison life. But he speaks with conviction about the findings of "youth in the toils" he and a sociologist, the late Pryor Grant and criminologist Leonard V. Harrison make these observations:

"Prison for adults is in the nature of a university of crime. So is a large correctional training school (reformatory) all too often a preparatory school leading to the university.

"The codes of prisons are similar in principle to politically run municipal governments. A 'stack' or two of cigarettes will buy favors and soft jobs. Every job has its own graft, and fees are split with higher-ups.

THE PAY-OFF

"For so much, one can linger in hospital; an unwillingness or inability to "come across" get one a dowdy suit, a travesty of a haircut, or a beating up.

"Standards of decency are violated, if only because they are the standards of decency approved by the society that condemned their violators. And where normal sex outlets are not to be had, abnormal ones find easy justification.

"In such an atmosphere of cunning, force, graft, and immorality, boys sent to reformatories or prisons live for a year—or for number of years.

"Offenders who are reformable could be more successfully salvaged outside of prison by other more social constructive arrangements."

BEGIN IN COURTS

To the committee sponsoring the investigation it was obvious from this that the place to begin reform was not in the penal institutions but in the prisoners before they reached the institutions.

So Mr. Rockefeller and his group went to night court. They sat behind the bench and listened to the pleas and the commitments of the 16-to-21 year prisoners. Then they went through the process a prisoner goes through behind the scenes there.

About this the book advocated:

1—A special legal code to cover boys between the ages of 16 and 21 years.

2—A new "delinquent minors court," to handle cases under this code.

3—A dual system of disposing of these cases through (a) determination of guilt or innocence by an examining judge; and (b) determination of punishment or treatment on an individual basis by a special board of legal, social and psychiatric experts.

SWIFT JUSTICE

4—Arraignment of prisoners immediately on arrest to avoid the "hardening" effects of delays.

5—Settlements of cases swiftly, for, the book said, swift and sure justice has a greater deterrent quality than heavy punishment.

6—Sentences of four types: (a) for those "who cannot or will not" reform, "indefinite" segregation in prison or penal colonies; (b) for "the less tractable though ultimately reformable" offenders, special training schools and work camps "sufficiently isolated to provide a completely controlled environment; (c) for those "whose chief need is better environmental opportunities," a return to schooling or employment in favorable surroundings under "definite supervision"; and (d) those who can continue in their usual environment," supervised freedom on probation.

In Chains After Gun Battle

to others for the bare chance to work and produce.

Now any thinking person can see that this is not a healthy condition. The produce that farmers bring out of the earth, is money, and therefore, farmers are the greatest of money makers. They should be money lenders, not borrowers. And so all these mortgages on the homes of the greatest of money makers, show clearly that there is a very serious wrong somewhere in society. And it will be found that the people they borrow from never make any money at all. They do not labor on the soil and cause it to yield up wealth that the money represents.

All have heard a hundred times, that when farmers are prosperous, then everybody else is prosperous too, and vice versa. Would a merchant be as prosperous among a settlement where all farms were under mortgage, as where all farms were free of mortgage? And so, should not the business people in town be deeply interested in this question as to why farmers are borrowers of money, instead of lenders? A merchant among a lot of prosperous farmers can become rich, but he is sure to become bankrupt if among farmers who are just struggling along and tenants to a mortgage company.

Some years back, the local government of Manitoba sold the provincial lands to actual settlers at one dollar an acre. Then the government changed, and the land policy also changed. The new government alienated the public lands into the hands of speculators, wholesale, thousands of acres to one purchaser, a small payment down, and the balance, as they collected out of the actual settlers who bought to settle on, and the price was raised at once to five dollars an acre, and increasing as fast as settlers came in. So that in connection with this change of land policy, there are some questions that merchants and others should have asked themselves. Which would be the best customer, the man paying one dollar an acre for his land, or the man paying five an acre? Which settler would have the most comforts in his home, the one paying one dollar an acre, or the one paying five an acre? Which policy would be the better for the churches and schools, in the way of furnishing children for the schools, and adults for the church meetings?

If a settler finds it hard to get along when he gets land free, as a homestead, then how is he going to make ends meet, when he has to pay for the land, at once, two, five or ten dollars an acre? Then, is a person really buying land? Or only buying the chance to work land, and paying rent for it? There are many other pertinent questions about land that could be asked, but each can ask questions for himself, for it is easily seen that this matter of a land policy affects all classes of people, for the prosperity of one is the prosperity of all.

PRIMARY DUTY TO AID PEOPLE SPEAKER SAYS

Premier Patterson Of Saskatchewan Outlines Liberal Record

WEYBURN, Sask., May 23—The primary duty of government was to help people who, through conditions, were unable to maintain themselves, Premier W. J. Patterson told a Saskatchewan election campaign meeting here Saturday night. He was speaking in support of Dr. G. L. Crane, Liberal candidate for Weyburn in the June 8 balloting.

The Liberal government is not going to the polls asking for the vote of the electorate because they have helped the people, who through conditions which they could not control, could not maintain themselves," Premier Patterson said. "But does ask support because the assistance problem which has been one of tremendous magnitude, has been administered on an equitable basis."

SYSTEM OF GROUPS

Dr. Crane stated that never before in the history of the province should the political issues be so thoughtfully and carefully considered. "Confronting us," he said, "is an opposition of a system of groups. Group government has never been a success anywhere where it has been attempted. We want a government of experience. The Liberal government has given good, faithful and honest service."

Premier Patterson stated the relief problem was one of tremendous magnitude. Because of the primary need the government was unable to look after other things that should be done but was hopeful that the province was now going to come back to normal.

INTEGRITY MAINTAINED

If, however, there should be another crop failure the care of the people would again be the government's first responsibility, he said. For the seeding problem alone this spring $19,000,000 were required. This was secured because, by the careful management of the Liberal administration the integrity of the province had been maintained. Summer-fallow work on the farms was another problem that had to be faced. The extent in getting assistance would depend on the type of cation tax had been imposed.

government there is in the province at that time.

Discussing debt adjustment measures and provincial and federal government activities, the premier contrasted the "positive results" in Saskatchewan by arrangement, with the "negative results" achieved by the passage of laws. The promise of the Liberal party given during the election campaign of 1934 for debt adjustment had been absolutely fulfilled. Actual debt reductions on two rural municipalities in this area totalled in one case over $500,000 and in the other over $600,000.

The government promises, stated the premier, that if it is returned to power and there is a normal crop in Saskatchewan this fall, a measure of protection for the farmer will be afforded. The farmer will be allowed to keep enough for the maintenance of himself and family and stock, for school and municipal services and for seed and feed.

Referring to education, the premier stated that the co-operative government had reduced the grant to schools by one third and the Liberals had promised to restore those grants. In 1937 the government decided to restore the grants and to make that possible the edu-

Gladys May Wolfe Wears White Chiffon For Her Marriage To Frank Longworth

Audience Is Enthusiastic Over Revue

Eastwood United Church is Setting For Pretty Summer Ceremony

Snowy white chiffon fashioned the exquisite gown chosen by Gladys May Wolfe for her wedding on Saturday evening when, before the altar of Eastwood United church she became the bride of Frank Longworth.

Tight fitting at the waistline, her frock was made with a full skirt which flared gracefully. A small bolero jacket was a very smart feature of her dress and as her only ornament she wore a necklace of pearls. In her hair she wore a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of tea roses in pale pink.

Mr. Wolfe gave his daughter in marriage.

Officiating at the evening ceremony was Rev. A. B. Argue, and during the signing of the register Mr. Frank Williams sang "Because" accompanied on the piano by Miss G. Francey.

IN PETAL PINK

Attending the bride Miss Marguerite Francey chose as her bridesmaid's frock a lovely dress in pale pink georgette, with which she wore accessories in pale blue. Her dress, which was floor length was made with a tight fitting bodice and a high neckline. She wore a wreath of forget-me-not in her hair and carried in her floral bouquet pink and pale yellow carnations.

Mr. James Alexander acted as best man.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wolfe was charming in flowing chiffon. The background of her dress was navy and she wore accessories to harmonize. In her hat was a wide brimmed model with a veil and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Longworth looked very smart in a gown of brown crepe, with matching accessories. Her hat was a picture model while her corsage was also of roses.

RECEPTION AT CORONA

A reception to immediate friends and relatives was held following the ceremony in the Corona hotel, where the bride's table, attractively decorated with tulips and snapdragons in a rose shade, were centred by a three tiered wedding cake.

Mr. Harry Coles acted as toast master and the toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Bradley Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Longworth left later for a wedding trip by motor to the Pacific coast, the bride travelling in a smart frock in tea rose, with which she wore a small hat in navy with a rose veil and other accessories to match. Her top coat was of navy Duvetyn.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Longworth will make their home in Edmonton.

TO AWAKEN in children a love of country, to remind them of what they owe to those who gave their lives for King and country and to stimulate imperial co-operation, Empire Day was founded 40 years ago, and is today celebrated by millions of school children in all parts of the British Empire. Instigated by a daughter of the Empire, the late Mrs. Clementina Fessenden, the day is observed in Canada on the last school day preceding the 24th of May, but in other parts of the Empire, where Victoria Day is not regarded as a public holiday, it is held on the 24th.

Mrs. Fessenden devoted her time and her means to forwarding this Empire idea, and before her death in 1918 had the satisfaction of knowing that her efforts had succeeded beyond her expectations, not only in Canada but throughout the world. England and the other Dominions owe the development of the Empire Day idea to Lord Meath, who seven years after it was begun in Canada commenced a campaign for the purpose in England. He spent much of his own fortune in travelling, speaking and writing on the subject, with the result that over ten million children attending over 70,000 schools in the Empire take part in this patriotic observance.

Empire Day is observed each year in a little school, "St. Helena's" in the city of Poona, India, a school which has a strong international link with Canada, through the interest taken in it by the Imperial Daughters of the Empire. A second-storey wing, recently completed through their efforts has been named Canada Wing. This school represents a great experiment in education, many races are represented in the school and inter-racial friendships are encouraged. It is international and co-educational—a little League of Nations venture.

Liberals Ask More Women In Senate

OTTAWA, May 23—Inequality of men and women in matters political is "merely theoretical, a condition which it is believed will last as long as women accept it without protest," the National Federation of Liberal Women declared by resolution at the final session Saturday of a two-day convention.

The resolution asked the Dominion government to name more women senators, to encourage women candidates for the House of Commons and to place more women in more responsible positions on all boards and commissions, particularly those having to do with social legislation.

A second resolution on women's status declared there is much discrimination against them resulting from law, and asked repeal of all legal inequalities against women. Discrimination in civil service examinations and in the filling of positions was condemned by resolution and the removal sought.

Walther League Scores In Presentation Of Hilarious Comedy

Interesting and amusing glimpse into the fight for suffrage by women was given in the entertaining play "Her Honor the Mayor," a farce in three acts, presented by the Senior Walther League of Grace Lutheran church in the Masonic Temple recently.

Individuals taking part and the parts they played were: Ann Jabbs as "Eve Greenway," Her Honor the Mayor; Wilfred Hyatt as "Lester Parmenter," her fiance and rightful candidate for Mayor; Marie Schieske as "Mrs. McNabb," leader of the suffragettes; Esther Knebel as "Doris Denton," a suffragette and later Fire Chief; Audrey Gaebel as "Rosalie Myers," another suffragette; Val Kulak as the colored cook "Eliza," who later became the Chief of Police; Carl Schmok, petted and spoiled brother of Eve, and Clarence Kuhnke as "Mac McGoon," doughty Irishman and campaign manager for Lester; and a group of suffragettes including Rena Rekau, Eva Tandberg, Rose Fernie and Vivian Lacusta.

Make-up was under the charge of Harvey Kagna, and during intermissions Miss Mary Singer entertained with vocal selections.

Record - Breaking Play Contest Witnessed By 11,000

WINNIPEG, May 23. — Victoria Beaux Arts Society hold the Bessborough trophy, highest honor in Canada's non-professional theatre, for the best production presented in the record-breaking Dominion drama festival here.

Adjudicator Barrett H. Clark's selection of their well-staged and acted production of Noel Coward's play, "Hands Across the Sea," sent the award west of Winnipeg for the first time in festival history. The New York critic announced his decision here Saturday night.

CLOSE SECOND

Clark said the one-act play was only one per cent better than Toronto Masquers' production of "The Guardsman." Franz Molnar's three-act play was given the award for the best English play, exclusive of the Bessborough trophy winner.

A talented group from St. Boniface, Man., adjoining Winnipeg, captured honors for the best French production with a moving production of "Le Chant Du Berceau," by G. and M. Martinez Sierra, a full-length play of life in a cloistered convent in Spain.

Both winners of individual acting awards given by Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the Governor-General, were from winning plays. Mrs. Pauline Boutal, St. Boniface player, won the prize for the best woman actor in French, and the gold medal for the best woman's performance in French presented by Le Compte Robert de Dampierre, French military attache to Canada, for her role as Sister Jeanne in "Le Chant Du Berceau."

BEST ACTOR

Patrick Rostance as the actor in "The Guardsman" was given the Lady Tweedsmuir award for the best male performance in French or English, repeating his victory of 1937. Paul Pelletier as the rundown engineer Tito in Scampolo by Le Caveau of Ottawa won the French minister's prize for the best male performance in French.

Montreal Repertory Theatre, French section, won the Sir Barry Jackson prize for the best presentation at the festival finals of a Canadian play with a smart-moving production of "Maldonne," the story of a love triangle in an office, written by Arthur Pedley, 27-year-old Montreal newspaperman.

Two New Brunswick writers received the festival committee's $100 prize for the best play, written by an author domiciled in Canada, and eligible in any regional festival. Mrs. H. C. L. Sweet, Saint John, N.B., who wrote "Small Potatoes," and J. H. Thurrott, Fredericton, N.B., author of "La Tour," share the prize.

The final three short plays were given at a matinee on Saturday.

The University of Alberta Dramatic Society playing Thornton Wilder's since modern comedy, "The Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden," struck a fresh note in the festival," Sheila Morrison, Edmonton, played Ma Kirby "in the right mood."

The two children, played by Muriel Pettigrew, Calgary, and 11-year-old Dick MacDonald, Edmonton, were "pleasant and frequently brilliant."

The Halifax Theatre Arts Guild played "the occasionally clever but artificial little farce, "Send Her Victorious," which was "presented brilliantly." The play was by Philip Johnson, an Englishman with Hardie Pigot as director.

Brockville, Ont. Theatre Guild's work in "The Mask" showed "an honest, well-directed effort." Clark thought the three players "somewhat too nice for this sort of thing."

During formal ceremonies, speakers congratulated Winnipeg officials for their success in staging the festival, the first presented away from Ottawa since the Dominion competition started in 1932. More than 11,000 in all saw the performances here, compared with a maximum of 3,000 in Ottawa during the week.

The 16 performances I have seen this week representing the best non-professional dramatic work now being done in the dominion, have convinced me your artistic standards are of the highest and your achievements encouraging evidence of hard work, intelligence, devotion and talent," the United States critic said.

"Of the present and future value of this festival I haven't the slightest doubt. Without these great gatherings of theatre workers and enthusiasts you would find it extremely difficult to furnish that means and companionship and incentive to higher effort."

Thank-You Party Gay Affair

In honor of artists and others who assisted at the recent Carnival of Nations, the Edmonton Women's Liberal club entertained at a "Thank-you" party in the Oddfellows' Temple, 103 street on Saturday evening.

An impromptu program held during the evening delighted guests, and those taking part included Mr. L. B. Posten, Miss Ruby Gordon, Mrs. R. Hayes, Mrs. A. H. Gardiner, Mrs. J. Rault, Mr. W. Kitchen, Mr. G. Vallaincourt. Games and contests were also enjoyed.

Mrs. A. Vallaincourt was in charge of supper arrangements assisting were Miss Jean Boyle, Miss Olivia Smith, Mrs. C. E. Ferris, Mrs. J. L. Bernard, Mrs. A. L. Rockwell and Mrs. David Elsto.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

DEAR MISS DIX—I am married and have three small children. My husband and I are very congenial and happy except for one thing and our point of disagreement is about money. He makes a fair salary and provides well for us, but he will not put away anything for the future. He spends what he makes. Lends money freely that is seldom repaid. We am sure we could save something if only he would do so. This worries me a great deal, for we have an expensive future with children to educate. Also, if he should die and I were left with three children, I would have nothing but a small insurance policy and I would have to go out and try to earn a living for them myself, for which I am totally unprepared. What shall I do? Shall I stop worrying about the money proposition? Or shall I constantly nag my husband about trying to provide for the future?

MARTHA.

Answer:

I think that people who do not try to lay up something for the future are not only lacking in intelligence, but they are dishonest. There are two facts in life that no one can ignore. One is that rainy days are bound to come to us all. Sickness. Hard times. Bad business. Loss of position. A thousand misfortunes that are bad enough at best, but that are made a thousandfold worse if we have no money saved up to tide us over them.

And, finally, unless we die, there inevitably comes old age, when our earning power is gone and when, unless we have provided against it, we have to know the bitterness of dependence, and, as the old proverb says, "How steep are another man's stairs." These things being true, how criminally foolish and stupid is the man who does not provide an umbrella for his rainy day when he has the opportunity to do so.

The second fact that stares us in the face is that the man who spends everything he makes as he goes along, indulging his tastes and denying himself nothing, is nothing better than a thief, because in the end he robs other people of the money that they have sweated for and sacrificed to save. They haven't had good times. They haven't feasted and made merry. They have done without the things they wanted and the good times they would have enjoyed. Then Good Time Charlie comes along, after having spent all of his money, and they have to support him.

They have to pay his doctors' bills when he gets sick. They have to support him when he can't work. They have to educate his children. They have to take him into their homes when he gets old. And it isn't fair. It is nothing but robbery. It is stealing just as much as it would be to take some one else's pocketbook.

But what Good Time Charlie's wife is going to do about it I don't know. If a man is not forward enough looking himself to see the necessity for providing for the future it is because he deliberately shuts his eyes to what he does not want to see.

If he befools himself into thinking that he cannot die or be stricken down with some disease that will make him helpless, or that he cannot lose his job, or that the depression cannot hit him, there he is a moron with whom it is hopeless to argue. If he cares so little for his wife and his children that he does not try to protect them against being thrown penniless on a world that is hard on widows and children, then no appeal to his affections will have effect.

The wife's nagging will get her nowhere. It will only make quarrels that will alienate her husband from her. All that she can do is to try to turn his spending mania to some good purpose by getting him to go in debt for real estate or good securities on which he has to pay every month. And even that isn't a very hopeful prospect, because Good Time Charlie would always rather throw a party than put the money in the savings bank.

DOROTHY DIX.

Important Note In Spring Style Song

This black satin blouse, with high, swathed collar, belongs to an impeccably tailored black suit signed Creed. Note the yoke effect on the skirt underlined in gleaming black cord, which also appears on the conventional tuxedo jacket. The dash of color is supplied by the bright red chiffon scarf trimming on the black pivot straw hat.

Raising A Family

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

There was a little girl who had one brown eye and one blue one. She was a beautiful child and grew up into a still greater beauty. She married a man who became famous, and his career took him to foreign lands. She became one of the world's finest hostesses. Her kindness was the greatest part of her charm.

O. R. Barton

But back of her history was another story. As a child she had suffered intense agony over her "different" eyes. Her young play-mates took her for granted. When she started to school, the teacher was quick the first week to tell a story about a beautiful fairy who was called "Lovely Eyes." And up went a dozen hands.

"Mary Smith has eyes like the fairy," pointed out a little girl.

Teacher was surprised. She looked at Mary closely, smiling. "Why so you have, Mary. Isn't that wonderful."

She had debated with herself about the story. It might only make things worse, but she had noticed a tendency in the little girl to look away or keep her eyes down. Better have her face it in the right way, she thought. Now she would see what happened. Mary learned to overcome her habit of lowering her lovely lids. She could look anybody in the face.

MOTHER'S ATTITUDE WRONG

But one day she met Mary's mother. And Mary's mother went onto the subject of Mary's eyes at once. "Isn't it cruel that such a beautiful child should have to go through life like that?" she sighed. "I can't be resigned. We both cry together every once in a while. I just can't control my feelings and we try to bear it together."

The teacher was shocked. "But, Mrs. Smith," she said softly, "Mary doesn't mind. She is upset because she thinks you mind. And I know she is no longer so conscious of her difference as she was. You have a most unusually lovely daughter, and her eyes make her really more beautiful. I know lots of people with the same difference in shading."

There were no psychiatrists then for people to go to with their problems. Mary's mother could not rid herself of the first depression that seized her when Mary was a baby. It became a real obsession, and Mary felt that she was causing it.

So Mary had an unhappy childhood. Her mother had made too deep inroads on her emotions at first, to cast it off. She did not live to see her daughter become famous.

This little story is merely an example of unhappiness that sometimes stalks children through their parents' disappointments. If they, our children, feel themselves helplessly responsible for parental grief, it is very bad indeed.

Wedding Coiffure to Suit Both Veil, Hat

By ALICIA HART

The June bride's coiffure ought to be designed to be as becoming with her going-away hat as with her wedding veil. Her makeup must be even more subtly applied. Nothing possibly could be more incongruous than obviously over-rouged cheeks below a frothy white frock, dress and veil.) And her nails should be varnished a soft, romantic shade rather than a flamboyant one.

The best plan for the bride to follow is, of course, to take her veil and the going-away hat to her own hairdresser one week before the ceremony is scheduled. This will give the coiffure expert a chance and plenty of time to try this and that hairstyle until he creates one that pleases her and which hands somely sets off both veil and hat.

Furthermore, by getting her special wedding coiffure done one week before the ceremony, the bride will have a chance to get used to it. Then, after her hair is washed and arranged again early in the morning of her wedding day, she won't be self-conscious about it.

Then, too, she ought to decide ahead of time what makeup and how much of it she'll need on her day of days.

TEMPTATION TO OVER-ROUGE

If you are getting married in a dimly-lighted church, your first inclination will be to use rouge pretty lavishly. But unless the lighting effects in the room in which your reception line will form are the same as those in the church, ignore this inclination. Better to be slightly pale in the church than to appear decidedly over-rouged in the reception line, where everyone can get a really good look at you.

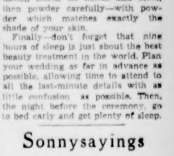

Unless your lashes and brows are quite colorless, don't wear mascara. And on your wedding day, even if the ceremony takes place in the evening, completely skip eyeshadow. Also, apply lipstick carefully and give it a chance to set before putting on your veil and picking up your flowers. What could be worse than to have a wedding veil even faintly smeared with lipstick? Or the bride's lips so thickly coated with "sheer" lipstick that her young husband's first kiss immediately after the ceremony leaves his mouth streaked with red?

Since today's brides seldom wear gloves for a formal wedding, the appearance of your hands is all important. Renew your attention to hand lotions. One night a week rub warm olive oil or rich night cream or plain vaseline into hands and wrists, and wear clean, loose, cotton gloves while you sleep. And when you make up face and neck for the ceremony, use regular foundation lotion on hands and arms, then powder carefully—with powder which matches exactly the shade of your skin.

Finally—don't forget that nine hours of sleep is just about the best beauty treatment in the world. Plan your wedding as far in advance as possible, allowing time to attend to all the last-minute details with as little confusion as possible. Then, the night before the ceremony, go to bed early and get plenty of sleep.

According To Culbertson

By ELY CULBERTSON

Too many players allow the possession of three or four aces to go to their heads. I am just as fond of an ace as is any one else, but I never lose sight of the fact that most of the tricks are won by lower cards. North's misuse of the four-five no trump convention in the following hand was typical of those players who overrate aces and underrate kings and queens.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ 7
♦ A 8 5
♣ A J 7 4

♦ K 7 3 2

SOUTH
♠ Q 8 5
♥ 9
♦ J 10 6
♣ K Q 10 5 2

The bidding:

I spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
6 clubs	Pass

North was very disappointed when his partner could not answer the four no trump bid affirmatively, and passed to five clubs only after a deep, regretful sigh. There was good ground for this sight, but not the same ground that North had in mind. It was not a case of missing a slam, but of being unable to fulfill the mere game contract in clubs.

West opened the heart queen. East won and made the eminently correct shift to a low diamond. From that point declarer was battling insuperable odds. By the time he had established dummy's spade suit the defenders had set up a diamond trick, and the contract was down one.

North's four no trump bid had been the monkey wrench in the machinery. The first and most important consideration in the employment of the four-spade no trump convention is that the partnership should be safe at the five level if there is a positive response or at the six level with a positive one. North's hand did not conform to this requirement. Although North had first round control in three suits and second round control in hearts, there still was not enough in his hand of what certain experts vulgarly refer to as "guts" for North to commit himself irrevocably to a five level, or higher, contract. For all North could tell, South might have reasonably good spade support which he would be willing and anxious to show if permitted to do so at a logical point. Thus, if North had adopted the correct expedient of jumping to four clubs, South, with the Q-8-5 of spades, would have seized the chance to show that he could stand a spade contract. The bidding should have gone:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Obviously four spades would have been a laydown against any opening lead and against any subsequent defense.

North probably would have liked to find fault with South's two club response and attribute the downfall to that bid, but since South's bidding had been perfectly correct North did not even have that solace.

Avoid Awkwardness in Introductions

Put the Other Person at Ease

What an awkward situation! Mrs. Haughty ignoring Mr. Genial's offer to shake hands!

She's noticed that others at the party aren't shaking hands. It's not necessary when a number of people are introduced in succession. Usually, in being introduced to a woman, the man takes his cue from her—waits to see if she offers her hand. Mr. Genial didn't wait. But that's no excuse for Mrs. Haughty to embarrass him. She should have extended her hand graciously.

How important introductions are! First impressions are often lasting. It's wise to know the rules—when to rise—whom to address first—what to say. Our 32-page booklet tells all this. Keeps you posted on charming manners everywhere—at dinner, dances, teas. Guides your conduct in restaurants, theatres, trains, and other public places.

Recipe For a June Wedding Breakfast

Bulletin Patterns

By Anne Adams

A-M 4810

Here's a summer design to make larger women want to "live" in shirtwaist styles! Its seams are slimming and easily put together. Its graceful curved yoke, jaunty pockets and neat loose sleeves have a way of taking years off one's age, while its kick pleat allows for a healthy step. The pointed collar may be preferred in a shade different from the rest of the dress to match the pockets, which may be left off if desired. A small tie silk print—or one of the pretty new cottons in a neat summery design—will show a pio special advantage in this Anne Adams triumph.

Pattern 4810 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number. Send your order to The Edmonton Bulletin, Pattern Department, Edmonton, Alberta.

What To Do

By Phyllis Belmont

I have moved into a new neighborhood. A neighbor called and left her card when I was not at home. Should I call her on the telephone and say I was sorry I was out? Should I simply return the call? What should I do? How soon should a call be returned? MRS. E. T. M.

Answer—It is not necessary to telephone to your neighbor. But there is no good reason why you shouldn't — and tell her you are sorry to have missed her visit. In any event, within a week return the call. If you don't find your neighbor at home leave your card as return. In general, one leaves a card when the person called on is out. When you find your hostess in and part for a visit she is not likely to forget that she has been you and you need not leave a card unless you think she does not know your address and would be glad to have it.

Debunker

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

From ancient times, stories have circulated that great sea serpents have been sighted, but never has one instance been established by scientists. Once it was claimed that a serpent 600 feet long had been seen off Norway; others have been claimed near the shores of Scotland, America and other places. Scientists do not believe that such serpents ever have lived, for not a single fossil evidence has been found. Their existence probably is all a matter of imagination and there is a greater body of testimony even for ghosts than for sea serpents.

Voters Urged To Co-Operate With Canadian C.C.F.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 23.—Unemployed, various associations, home-owners and all voters in general were urged to co-operate with the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation party by J. S. Woodsworth, M.P. for Winnipeg North Centre, party leader, at a meeting here last night.

Earlier, at a banquet in his honor, Mr. Woodsworth, along with Charles Millard, Oshawa, executive board member of the United Automobile Workers of America, asked for co-operation between the U.A.W.A. and the C.C.F. "Labor must realize that political organizations as well as unions will be required for labor to gain its end," he said.

WHEAT FUTURES DROP 3 CENTS

WINNIPEG, May 23—Winnipeg July wheat future dropped more than three cents today to lead declining prices that followed weakness in outside markets, easing of the European political situation and lack of demand. Wheat futures closed 3⅛-3⅛ cents lower, May $1.16⅛, July $1.01½-⅝ and October 83¼ cents.

A feature of the drab session was the disappearance of a premium for No. 1 Northern wheat. For the first time in many months the top grade of Canadian wheat was on a deliverable basis.

The Liverpool market at the close of the week was a quiet affair, fluctuating within narrow limits and finally closing ¼ to ½ higher. The demand for Australian wheat was fair, with another cargo taken in addition to small parcel lots and this, together with the unsettled political situation had a steadying influence. Greece also bought an Australian cargo, but the demand elsewhere in Europe was reported as quiet.

GEO. F. POWELL NOW EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK

British Social Credit Adviser Sails June 1 For England

G. F. Powell, British advisor to the Alberta government, today is en route to New York from where he will sail June 1 for his home in England.

Representative of Major C. H. Douglas, British founder of Social Credit, Mr. Powell left here Saturday after being an advisor to the government since June, 1937. He was released on ticket-of-leave April 29 from Fort Saskatchewan jail where he served part of a six-month term started Feb. 10 for publishing defamatory libel.

BYRNE AT STATION

L. D. Byrne, also a representative of Major Douglas and technician to the Alberta Social Credit Board, was at the station along with Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, and other members of the legislature to say farewell to Mr. Powell.

Leaving on the same train to participate in the Saskatchewan provincial election campaign was Floyd M. Baker, secretary of the Social Credit Board and member of the legislature for Clover Bar.

TO MEET PREMIER

En route to New York, Mr. Powell is stopping off in Saskatchewan to meet Premier Aberhart who, as leader of the Western Canada Social Credit Association, is on a speaking tour of Saskatchewan on behalf of Social Credit candidates in the general election.

Whether Mr. Powell will return to Alberta was unknown. Prior to his being sentenced he had indicated intentions of returning to the old country. When he was released on ticket-of-leave it was reported he would return to his London home within a month.

The charge against Mr. Powell resulted from distribution of the "Bankers' Toadies" leaflets here in September, 1937, in which nine Edmonton men were named. When convicted and sentenced, Mr. Justice W. G. Ives in supreme court recommended Mr. Powell's deportation.

After his release from Fort Saskatchewan jail, Mr. Powell again occupied his office at the legislative buildings. When asked if he expected to return to Alberta, Mr. Powell said "That is a matter for the Alberta government and the Canadian government to say."

PREMIER PLEADS SOCREDS GIVEN CHANCE JUNE 8

SASKATOON, May 23—"If the people of Canada prefer to have the demonstration (of Social Credit) take place in the province of Alberta, where it began, they should be given an opportunity to indicate it to the federal government," Premier Aberhart of Alberta said in a statement issued here Sunday.

Mr. Aberhart, now participating in the Saskatchewan June 8 election campaign, conferred here with G. F. Powell, British Social Credit technician, sent to Alberta in June, 1937, by Major C. H. Douglas, founder of Social Credit.

The Social Credit technician, released April 29 from Fort Saskatchewan jail on ticket-of-leave after serving about half of a six month term for publishing defamatory libel, is en route to England.

Mr. Powell left Saskatoon last night for Eastern Canada, where he will attend a meeting in Montreal May 29 to organize an Eastern Canada Social Credit association. A western association, of which Mr. Aberhart is leader, was formed in April.

2,000 PRISONERS MAKE DESPERATE EFFORT TO FLEE

HENDAYE, France, May 23—Two thousand captured government militiamen killed several of their guards in the Insurgent prison at Pamplona last night and, seizing arms, battled troops in a futile effort to escape.

The Insurgent command at Irun said the uprising was quelled only after an undetermined number of prisoners were killed and wounded.

Prisoners were said to have overpowered their guards in a carefully laid plot, shooting several. Then they broke into the guardroom where firearms were stored. Barricading themselves there, they engaged in a fight with insurgent troops.

With cold weather, make sure that the rubber hose on your radiator is in perfect condition so that the anti-freeze will not leak out.

Hugo Eckener Disappointed Helium Loss

NEW YORK, May 23.—Dr. Hugo Eckener said Sunday failure to obtain helium from America to fill his new dirigible would cause him the "greatest disillusionment of my life." He sought to purchase helium here to replace hydrogen which destroyed the dirigible Hindenburg a year ago. He denied the gas would be used for military purposes. "The increasing size and speed of airplanes has rendered the dirigible useless as a military weapon to Germany," he said.

$7,000 PROGRAM ON ROAD OILING NOW PROCEEDING

Appropriation of $7,000 has been made in the city engineering department this year for road-oiling as a dust-abatement measure, and the department has now started the largest program of the kind since 1932 when $10,000 was spent on this item.

City Engineer A. W. Haddow is supervising the work, which is being directed by Arthur Smith, streets foreman.

First roads to be oiled include 107 avenue and the gravelled stretches on either side of the 105 street bridge. To date 17,000 gallons of oil have been used to lay dust, approximately 85,000 yards of road surface being covered, according to Chief Accountant Spiller, of the city engineering department. One gallon of oil covers about one square yard.

$22,000 NEEDED FOR LOCAL WORK ON IMPROVEMENT

Totalling $22,000, a local improvement program for the city, including road gravelling, curbing and new bituminous and plank sidewalks, is being recommended to city council Monday night by city commissioners.

The local improvement works have been petitioned for by property-holders or otherwise requested, and City Engineer A. W. Haddow has prepared a schedule covering the program.

Construction of walks requires $7,214 and road improvement $14,823; according to the schedude, Road work is classified as follows: grading, gravelling and concrete curbing, $9,566; grading, gravelling, boulevarding and concrete curbing, $2,702; concrete curbs, $449; boulevarding and concreat curb, $2,085; light grading, $19.

Complete schedule of capital estimates for 1938 will be submitted to council shortly, but the above-mentioned items are now submitted with a view to having the work authorized and carried out, commissioners report.

Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health and in charge of relief, is a visitor in his constituency for a few days, having gone to Hanna and other centres to meet the people and discuss their problems with them. He is expected to return here in a few days.

BORROWING FOR PROFIT
in the Dairy Industry
Profitable operations in the dairy business largely depend upon wise management. Competition is keen and good managers will borrow at the Bank, if necessary, to improve and maintain the quality of the herd, provide for scientific feeding and stabling, and keep essential equipment up-to-date and well-conditioned.
The Bank of Montreal is interested in such constructive efforts by dairymen. Our branch managers, familiar with conditions and requirements in this important industry, welcome applications for loans, to finance improvements.
The Bank of Montreal is also interested in the organization and operation of Boys' and Girls' Calf and Swine Clubs, and welcomes the opportunity to discuss their requirements.

Only 20 foreign-made cars were registered in New York from Jan. 1 to November, 1937.

"Oh the twenty-fourth of May is the Queen's birthday,
If we don't get a holiday we'll all run away."

So ran the old rong when the holiday was first started to commemorate the birthday of Queen Victoria—and later perpetuated as Empire Day.

For most people it will be a holiday, so there's no reason to run away, although many people are expected to run away from the city to nearby lakes and other resorts, as this is the first official holiday of summer.

Warm sunshine beamed down from on high on Monday, giving promise of a fine day on Tuesday. If that promise is fulfilled, then this city will see one of the greatest days of celebration in its history.

In the realm of sport and other activities there will be much doing.

Railway, bus companies and other transportation organizations reported a heavy exodus from the city and an almost corresponding influx as city and country prepared exchange residents.

In the city the Highland Games at the South Side athletic grounds will draw a large number of spectators, while the various tennis clubs, golf courses, bowling greens and other sport centres will be well patronized.

RIVER TO BE POPULAR

The river will see canoers and the rural parts will see hikers and those bent on picnics. Welcome streams will have their quota of fishermen.

The Alberta Musical Festival will be under full steam with the distinguished British musicians, Sir Hugh Roberton and Maurice Jacobson acting as adjudicators.

Theatres have planned specially fine attractions with splendid feature films booked.

Those who prefer to stay at home doubtless will devote much attention to their gardens and other beautification.

FIRECRACKER CELEBRATIONS

And for the kiddies, firecrackers, skyrockets and other show things.

In this connection the whole year's work of more than 40 persons, in a large fireworks factory, will go up in smoke, when the young people—and those not so young—turn loose their barrage and sky-show.

A year's output of the factories that make firecrackers, Roman candles, pinwheels, sparklers and other features of this day, will go to the four winds in about a 12-hour day.

But, oh, what a day.

Police Court

Appearing before Magistrate A. H. Gibbons in police court Monday on a charge of negligent driving, C. B. Lavigne was ordered to pay a fine of $15 and costs.

William Jenkins was sentenced to serve one month with hard labor in Fort Saskatchewan jail when convicted on a vagrancy charge.

William A. Vanzant and Ernest Aubert, pleading guilty to vagrancy charges, were given the option of leaving town within the next 12 hours, or of spending the next six months in Fort Saskatchewan jail.

Fred Melnick, 9929 80 avenue, is not the Fred Melnick who appeared in police court last week.

Found guilty by Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd in supreme court of perjury arising out of evidence given by him before Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie during the trial of Gordon Ambler on a charge of theft of two automobile batteries, Cornelius Van Buren, Edmonton taxi-driver, was sentenced to serve three months in Fort Saskatchewan jail.

ENLARGEMENT O F SOLDIERS' PLOT PLANNED

Addition at Edmonton Cemetery Recommended To City Council

Recommendation that the soldier's plot at the Edmonton cemetery be enlarged to provide for approximately 675 additional graves will be made to city council Monday night by commissioners.

At the request of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., commissioners are proposing that the easterly 36.23 feet of 120 street between 107 and 108 avenues be closed to provide more space for soldiers' graves, the present plot being entirely filled. This plan is satisfactory to the city, Canadian Legion and Edmonton Cemetery Company.

LANDSCAPE WORK

If the recommendation is adopted by council, the company would assume the responsibility of moving the west boundary of the cemetery and making landscape work; the Canadian Legion would assume the legal costs of closing the portion of the street required.

Protesting the settlement of squatters in the Cloverdale district, near the Bennett school, a delegation of residents from this area will appear before council Monday night. It is reported that several shack-dwellers who were moved from Grierson dump colony earlier this month are now squatting in Cloverdale.

Council Monday night will name delegates to the convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities which will be held in Calgary, June 16 and 17.

BUS SERVICE

Commissioners are reporting to council that W. Storey, operator of the Forest Heights bus service, is prepared to continue this service during the summer months without further subsidy from the city. The city has no transportation service of its own in this district, passenger traffic being extremely light and averaging about two fares per bus mile.

Park League To Hold Sport Meet Tuesday, May 24

Featured by a variety of sports competitions, the King Edward Park community league will hold a sports meet on the King Edward Park school grounds, May 24, Empire Day.

The program includes softball and basketball games and races of all kinds, as well as a tug-of-war. Entertainment will also be provided by a teacup reader, and the program will be concluded with a dance in the community hall in the evening.

League President Harry Bennister is in charge of the gathering, assisted by a large committee which was completing arrangements Monday for the Tuesday sports.

Former Edmonton Boy Gets Degree

Word has been received that Charles Bridges, formerly a student at Alberta College and Victoria High school here, a son of Mrs. C. G. Bridges of 10 Harmony Apts. Edmonton, will receive his B. A. Sc. degree in chemical engineering and applied chemistry from the University of Toronto at Convocation on June 9. Mr. Bridges has accepted a position with the International Nickel Company at Sudbury, Ontario.

Donald Dick and Ian McBride Win Model Plane Test

Gasoline Motor Powered Miniature Airplane Remains Aloft Four Minutes and 18 Seconds on Sunday

Crowning achievement in more than three years' building of model airplanes, Donald Dick, 14, of 11326 99 avenue, and Ian McBride, 14, of 9823 113 street, captured the first position in the model airplane competitions held Sunday morning at the airport, when their little "California Chief" powered model airplane took the air and remained aloft four minutes and 18 seconds. Second prize-winner, Jack Southworth, had his machine keep the air for three minutes, seven and two-fifths seconds.

The competitions, the first of their kind to be held in the city, were open to all comers with model airplanes powered with miniature gas engines. There were 17 models entered, but only eight took the air, due to engine trouble on the part of the remaining entries.

PART OF SERIES

The events were part of a series of competitions conducted by the Model Airplane League of Edmonton, and sponsored by the Canadian Legion. Contests for scale model planes were held last Monday in Memorial Hall. Contest for flying models equipped with rubber band power will be held Tuesday at 10.00 a.m. south of the airport.

The winners of the competition have made model airplanes as their hobby for more than three years, starting with scale models and later becoming interested in power models. The winning plane cost over $25 to build and required a week's labor. It is one of four powered models they now own.

GAINED 1,000 FEET

The performance of the winning plane Sunday morning does not equal the best flight it has made. Recently in a test flight, it stayed aloft over five minutes and gained an altitude of almost 1,000 feet, due to a rising wind and travelled from the hangar at the airport to 99 street.

Fourteen-year-old Donald Dick said that he was "pretty excited" when his plane took the air, and thought it could have done better, had the motor been better adjusted.

Prizes for the first and second place winners were donated by the Canadian Model Works, the first being a "Comet Clipper" model kit valued at $7.50, and second prize a pair of air wheels for a gas model plane, valued at $3.50.

More than 500 spectators turned out to see the events, which lasted from 9.00 a.m. until noon.

Other competitors were Allan Bruce, George Ramedell, Arthur Fenton, Arnold Hicks (3rd place), Art Campin, Douglas Ireland, Fred Hall.

No Definite Date Received On Works Plans For Alberta

Definite information regarding Dominion government public works expenditures in this province has not yet come to hand, according to Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works.

Mr. Fallow stated that latest advices he had received from Ottawa indicated that as soon as the supplementary estimates were brought down that he would receive word.

He expects to communicate at an early date with Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labor, and Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of resources, regarding construction of public works.

Scholarship

KENNETH F. ARGUE

Adding further honors to an already brilliant career, Kenneth F. Argue, 11905 82 street, teacher at Oliver Intermediate school, has been elected a scholarship to the advanced school of education at the Teachers' College of Columbia University in New York, for the year 1938-39, carrying an award of $1,000.

Mr. Argue is the son of Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Argue, of the city, and graduated from the U. of A. in 1931 with a B.A. degree, having majored in history. Receiving the I.O.D.E. scholarship for that year, he went to Oxford University for further studies, receiving a B.A. (Oxon.) in 1933, having read in philosophy and political economy.

Returning to Canada, he taught at Spirit River, being principal of the High school there, then at Mayerthorpe school in the city, and later at Oliver Intermediate.

Mr. Argue has attended summer school sessions at Columbia University for the past two summers, writing his qualifying examination for his scholarship last summer.

The Inquiring Reporter

What do you think of the idea suggested in Ottawa, that special paths be provided along city streets for cyclists, on account of the great increase in the number using bicycles?

The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter was intrigued by the suggestion and especially when he read that in Denmark there are 3,500,000 residents, of whom 900,000 ride bicycles, and special paths are provided for them.

Seeking opinion on this point, the Inquiring Reporter put the question to several friends, with the following results:

CYRIL HORROBIN, Canadian Press staff: I don't think there is any reason for having special paths for cyclists here. The ratio of such riders to the total population is not so great here as in Denmark. I think if cyclists keep well to the right and do not ride more than two abreast—as provided in regulations—there is no need for special paths, save in specific places such as the high level bridge.

CHARLIE THOMPSON, service car operator: It is a debateable point. There are good arguments on both sides. In principle special paths for bicycles is a good idea. But it is a question whether there are enough such riders here to warrant special provisions such as are suggested. Some riders are careless and make everybody else use the highway jitney, but as long as riders exercise reasonable care, there is no need for special paths for them.

FRANK SMITHSON, clerk: I think there should be special tracks for cyclists, just to protect riders against their own carelessness. To me the class of person requiring protection against himself more than any other, is the cyclist. When I see some of them wobbling along crowded streets with folded arms and dodging in and out in front of automobiles in snake-dance fashion, I must confess I think that traffic lanes "for bicycles only" are the natural solution to the difficulty.

JACK GOLDIE, businessman: I think that on a place like the high level bridge it is a good idea to have a path for bicycles, such as is provided. However, we do not need special provisions to the same extent as Denmark, otherwise someone might start an agitation for special roads for automobiles and leave the regular routes of travel to the cyclists. The idea has merit and doubtless will be adopted if and when the cycle population grows.

KILTIES HOLD SPOTLIGHT IN DRESS PARADE

March To Divine Service Sunday Preludes Annual Highland Games

Preluding the annual Highland Games to be held at the South Side exhibition grounds on Tuesday, Victoria Day, members of the Edmonton Highland Games Association paraded to the legislative buildings grounds on Sunday, to attend their annual divine service.

More than 2,000 residents gathered at the legislative buildings grounds to take part in the divine service.

The parade formed up at the Association's offices, 10175 100A street and moved west on Jasper to the grounds.

PIPE BAND

The pipe band of the 49th Bn., the Edmonton Regiment, led the parade and other bands taking part were the C.N.R. pipe band, the Edmonton Boys' Pipe Band.

Stirring Scottish martial tunes and the "wiggle-waggle" of the kilt drew a large congregation to the service.

Headed by T. H. Campbell, president and chieftain of the Highland Games Association, the officers marched in a body, many wearing characteristic costume.

The Salvation Army band joined the service at the legislative buildings grounds.

Participating ministers in the service were Rev. G. A. Macdonald, pastor of Knox United church; Rev. H. A. McLeod, pastor of Robertson United and Rev. Ross K. Cameron, minister of First Presbyterian church.

SCOTLAND'S STANDARD

The yellow standard of Scotland flew from a flag-pole near the flag-draped platform which served as the focal point of the service. This standard, 18 feet by 10 feet was made specially for the association and officials stated it was said to be the largest flag ever made in Scotland on order for another country.

"Ye are a colony of Heaven" was the theme of the service taken by Mr. McLeod. He stressed the Scottish love of sports and said this was an evidence of faith that this old world that harbored joy. The Scot, he said, brought a sense of freedom and a sense of independence to his activities.

SCOT WAS FREE

Because of faith that he reposed in God a Scot was free, he said. He declared that the world needed a people able and willing to stand for what was dear to them.

The sons of Scotland were known and loved by all, he said. He urged need of uniting against the common foe, namely, that which made for a lower standard of life.

Hymns sung were All People That on Earth Do Dwell; The Lord is My Shepherd and I to the Hills Will Lift My Eyes.

TEMPERATURE AT 70 ABOVE HERE SUNDAY

Clouds of dust hanging over the main gravelled roads leading out of Edmonton, banks over the Saskatchewan river teeming with hikers and the river itself dotted with pleasure craft, and other signs of warmer than normal weather readings were evidence of the summer weather provided during the week-end.

Highest temperature of the two-day period was a mark of 74 above, at 4 p.m. Saturday, while Sunday at 3 and 4 p.m. was almost as high with 73 above. All during Sunday night the mercury stayed well up the glass, the lowest reading up to 9 a.m. Monday being 48 above, from 4 to 6 a.m.

According to the Monday morning forecast, given at 9 a.m., with the temperature already at 66 above, the Victoria day outlook for Alberta in the weather department is "Fair today and Tuesday; no temperature change; light, scattered showers."

Near north temperatures at 8.30 a.m. Monday were still up in the warm readings, the range being from 68 above, at Spirit River, to 48 above, at Grouard. No rain was reported from the area.

Fort Norman was the cool spot of the far north at 9 a.m. Monday, having 36 above, while Aklavik, usually chilliest, was warmer at 44 above. Two degrees higher was Fort Simpson, with 46 above.

DEATH FROM CAR ACCIDENT JURY VERDICT

A coroner's jury sitting under the direction of Coroner Dr. F. A. Keillor Saturday afternoon, decided that Sam Kostynuk, 48-year-old Smoky Lake hotelkeeper, who died in the Royal Alexandra hospital Friday midnight following an auto accident on the St. Albert Trail at 2 a.m. last Thursday, died as the result of the auto accident.

Their verdict read:

"We find that Sam Kostynuk came to his death as the result of an auto accident in the deceased's car, which was driven by Mike Palichuk, the car turning over about four miles north of Edmonton on the St. Albert Trail.

"Cause of death, pulmonary oedema and dislocated vertebrae.

"Contributing to the accident were the glaring headlights of an approaching car. We find that there had been considerable drinking by the parties previous to the accident."

The jury consisted of G. H. McKeever, foreman, W. J. Payne, A. E. Asher, J. B. Babb, Morley Young and Allen Wheatstone.

Coal Shed Prey To Flames Sunday

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a coal shed and slightly damaged a garage on the property of William Boylan, 6401 118 avenue, early Sunday morning.

A neighbor, M. Makarniuk, noticed the flames at 4.10 a.m., and phoned the fire department, but the flames had a good start, and when a barrel containing 20 gallons of coal oil exploded, it was impossible to save the coal shed. Firemen from No. 7 fire hall spouted a stream of water on the other buildings and extinguished a blaze which had started in a nearby garage.

British Bridge Expert Is Dead

LONDON, May 23.—Lieut.-Col. Walter Buller, 51, British bridge expert, died Saturday. He sponsored the first international bridge match here in 1930 against a team headed by Ely Culbertson. In 1932 Colonel Buller started an international bridge controversy with an attack up on the Culbertson system and a charge Culbertson himself was a "dictator" in bridge.

Aerial Bombing Is Overrated Say Experts

British United Press Cable

CANTON, May 23.—Aerial bombing is the most over-rated offensive weapon in modern warfare.

That is the deduction generally drawn from what has happened in south China in the Sino-Japanese war.

Every foreign military observer questioned by the British United Press came to the same conclusion. The summary of their deductions was:

"In the south China campaign, as well as throughout China, there are three facts made clearer than ever. They are:

1—Bombing, as an offensive weapon, has been much over-rated not only by journalists, but by air officials as well.

2—Temporary derangement of communications and traffic facilities is the net result of thousands of bombs being dropped in the area, indicating that permanent destruction by aerial bombing alone is impossible.

3—Instead of demoralizing the civil population, bombing definitely intensifies the spirit of resistance.

"The chief objective of the Japanese air force in this area has been to destroy communications between Hong Kong, Canton and Hankow. but what have they done? In bombing virtually undefended lines the best results to date have been stopping traffic on the Canton-Hankow Railway for three days, and on the Canton-Kowloon railway for two.

Observers agreed, however, that the Japanese air force has been of enormous value in:

1—Long range tactical observation, as an auxiliary arm of the army.

2—Reconnoitring for fighting purposes, as an independent fighting unit.

3—Local technical observation in directing artillery fire.

4—Further demoralizing retreating Chinese troops by machine-gunning and bombing simultaneously with the advance of Japanese infantry.

TRIAL FLIGHT

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CAST OF CHARACTERS

JACKIE DUNN, heroine, she wanted to fly.

ROGER BRECKNER, hero; he wanted to test the stratosphere.

BERYL MELROSE, wealthy widow, she wanted Roger.

EVELYN LA FARGE, Jackie's mother; she wanted a comfortable life.

Yesterday: Jackie rushes to Rogers bedside. An enormous pity engulfs her and then she finds Beryl Melrose has arrived first.

CHAPTER XVIII

BERYL MELROSE was staying at the same hotel with Jackie. She had been staying there ever since Roger had been found and removed to the hospital. The moment she had received word that the silver plane had been forced down she had boarded the first transcontinental ship headed back East.

The nurses told Jackie, over and over, how wonderful Mrs. Melrose had been. They said it was doubtful if Roger would ever hold on to the slender thread of life without her. She had scarcely left his side, day or night.

"He certainly wouldn't be alive today, if it weren't for Mrs. Melrose," Doctor Watson, who attended Roger, added his word of praise. "My, but she is a wonderful woman."

That was what Roger had said about Beryl too. More than once he had told Jackie how wonderful he thought Beryl was. In the anxious days that were to follow Jackie was to agree, if somewhat reluctantly, with this general opinion. Beryl was indeed a pillar of strength; her calm poise never deserted her, never for a moment did she show signs of losing hope. Her self-control, even emotions her heart may have held.

She was wonderful to Jackie, too. Not only was she cheerful and kind, but she made every effort to be friendly and to win the younger girl's liking and confidence. There were many long hours that they had to spend in each other's company, not only in the hospital at Roger's side, but they had many meals together, took walks around the little old-fashioned town, talked far into the night after they had returned to their rooms.

Jackie had to admit, to herself at least, that she did not know how she could have pulled through this trying time without Beryl. But she admitted this reluctantly, too. For Jackie did not want to grow to admire Mrs. Melrose; she was not eager to be friends with her.

Jackie would not have been human if she had not resented the fact that Beryl had reached Roger's side first—and that he practically owed his life to her. It is not easy to love someone whom you know another person loves too.

It was now easy to stumble, unwittingly, upon the sort of scene that Jackie came upon several days after her arrival.

Roger had been improving steadily, if very slowly, so that now the crisis had passed. He had suffered a severe head wound, a double-fractured arm and a bad ankle, but there seemed no question as to his full recovery. He was still extremely weak; it would take weeks before he would be strong again; the shock alone was not one from which he could recover rapidly.

He was able to talk a little now, though not allowed to overtax his strength. He could be propped up on pillows for a short while each day. Jackie and Beryl usually took turns now visiting him, chatting cheerfully and impersonally—as orders still remained that he was not to be excited—reading aloud, or just sitting in the room while he dozed.

The morning of this particular day Jackie had spent with him. She planned to write a few letters in the afternoon, while Beryl was at the hospital.

"I'll stay until you come," Beryl said, in parting. "Don't feel that you have to hurry, Jackie. Take time to do a few things for yourself today. You should, now that Roger is improving so much."

"I will," Jackie said. "Isn't it grand that he's coming along so well? He seemed so much more like himself this morning. I wonder how long it will be, Beryl, before Roger can leave the hospital?" She would like some definite news to write her mother. Oh! the world was a grand place, now that Roger was going to be all right. Jackie felt more like herself, too; her heart was light again, with relief and joy and gratitude.

Beryl said, "I am going to have a conference with Dr. Watson today. Then we ought to know pretty definitely how much longer it is going to take for Roger to mend. Though what counts is the fact that he will get well. You know, Jackie," her lovely dark eyes grew sober, "if he hadn't—if anything serious had happened to Roger—I—I should have blamed myself for it. I should never have forgiven myself—never!"

This was the first time Beryl had let anyone glimpse through her carefully guarded reserve. Jackie was surprised—and moved. "You must not feel that way," she said. "It wouldn't have been your fault, Beryl." Of course she knew why Beryl felt that way; it was because she loved Roger.

"I can't help it," Beryl said, and for another brief moment, her eyes again betrayed her secret. Then she smiled, adding in her usual quiet manner, "But how foolish to talk this way even! Now that we know Roger will be all right—and are so thankful!" She said goodby once more and went on her way.

Jackie was feeling entirely madeover, late that afternoon, as she mounted the steps to the hospital. She felt a singing sort of happiness deep within her, as she had not felt since that dreadful day when Roger's ship had crashed down from the skies.

For the first time the long narrow hallways of the hospital failed to subdue and sadden her with their gloomy silence. She hurried towards Roger's door, at the far end, not dreading now what she would meet within these walls, but walking lightly, firmly, with quick, confident steps, and actually daring to hum a gay little tune underneath her breath!

Soon now Roger would be well again; he would leave this place forever. He would grow strong and brown and whole. All that had been would be as though it had never happened, this terrible accident, these anxious days of waiting and worrying—even all that had gone before that!

For when Roger was entirely well Jackie would tell him that all that had been between them had not been make-believe, pretense; she would tell him that their trial engagement could be a true one, if he wanted it to be. She would let him see how much she loved him. She would even tell him, if necessary! She would be proud to tell him, glad.

Now at his door she slackened her steps, curbing their eagerness. The door was slightly ajar; she would push it open gently and surprise Roger and Beryl. She had brought a surprise, too, purchased on her way: a lovely, colorful bunch of spring flowers, gay as the warm sunshine streaming in through the window, playing on Roger's narrow, high, white bed.

He was propped up, ever so slightly, against his pillows. But he did not see Jackie in the doorway. His eyes were on Beryl, who knelt at his side, her beautiful dark eyes fixed on his, their expression again unguarded, without reserve. She leaned forward now and caught Roger's free hand in hers. She pressed it swiftly, with infinite tenderness and passion, to her lips, then laid her head down, her shoulders shaking with long-drawn sobs.

Jackie did not wait to see more. She turned and walked quietly down the long silent hallway again, the flowers still clasped in her arms.

Woman Gives Up Eye

For the first time in Canada the delicate operation of removing the cornea of an eye and grafting the healthy tissue on the eye of another patient was undertaken in a Toronto hospital, when Miss Florence Hayward, right, volunteered to permit removal of a blind eye in an effort to give Nick Popiak, a fellow patient, his sight. Miss Hayward's eye, though blind, was not in need of removal and eye specialists said her that the grafting operation had one chance in a hundred of success. Popiak lost his sight through contact with acid several years ago. The two patients, shown after the operation, have since met. It will not be known for a month if the operation will succeed.

Indians Gathering For Sasquatch Celebrations

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C., May 23—Hundreds of Indians will gather here today and Tuesday for a celebration named after the legendary Sasquatches, hairy creatures who Indians say roam the high hills of this district 80 miles east of Vancouver.

Sasquatch days is the name given to the festival, but just what the Sasquatches are, nobody knows. No white man has ever seen them, and only a few Indians claim an actual visitation.

But the hairy giants are a reality in the Indian mind. Medicine men their children to believe with the admonition: "The sasquatches will get you."

Legend has it the Sasquatches did get one Indian woman and carried her off to the hills. When she came back after four years she would listen that the Sasquatches possessed the power of answering her the Indian village where she had lived, even though it was miles away.

Fresh Peacock Is Dainty Meal Of Polar Bear

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 23 (Ordinary zoo diet of fish won't satisfy Snowy, 1,200 pound polar bear of the Washington zoo since he tasted freshly plucked peacock.

Snowy was doing nothing in particular in his den in the National zoo yesterday afternoon, when, to his surprise, a gorgeous bird glided to the ground in front of him and immediately started to strut around the den with his tail fanned out in an irridescent circle.

Snowy's surprise didn't last long. Unmindful that the peacock was no zoo mate, he reached one swipe at the gorgeous feathers, actually donating the pelt of his glossy victim at one stroke. Then he followed through, and while some two score spectators stood agape, he finished a lunch of fine fresh peacock, leaving the floor of the den littered with feathers.

There's an old superstition that peacock feathers are unlucky. They were—for the peacock.

Looking Them Over

Patrick Here

End Squabbles

The Big Torch

LAST NIGHT two world-famous sport figures, both old friends, rolled into Edmonton on the same train. They were Lester Patrick, the silver fox of major league hockey, and Torchy Peden, rated by many as the world's greatest six-day racer. Lester is here to attend to several little matters connected with his hockey domain, while Torchy is here to provide one of the feature attractions at the Highlands Games on Tuesday.

One of the things Lester will attend to today is a survey of the possibility of staging one or two exhibition games here next fall between the Rangers and New York Amerks. He also wants to have a chat to the Colville brothers and Bill Carse.

Since players and managers started returning this spring from the N.H.L. wars to their homes in the west, a continual barrage of post-season charges and counter-charges have been kept up in some quarters over decisions that Clarence Campbell made while tooting the whistle in a couple of important games. Red Dutton has been one of the principal speakers for the opposition. The chief subject before the house seems to be was somebody or other in the goal crease or not when he shouldn't be . . . or did Clarence Campbell maybe see two goalies where only one should grow?

Would Lester have any remarks to make on this subject? Lester took a deep breath and said he could say plenty, but added that he failed to see how it would do any good. I admitted that my own interest in this post-season argument was slightly less than zero—a minus quantity, to be mathematically correct.

Then Lester comes through with something. He suggests that referees should check with the goal judge on whether or not an attacking player was in the goal crease when a goal was scored. That is a sound and logical suggestion that should go a long way toward eliminating the marathon squabbling that may arise from future calls on this rule. The goal judge is always within 10 feet or so of the goal crease. He is a neutral official and surely it would not lower a referee's dignity to ask him if he saw a player in the crease at the critical moment.

Patrick is favorably inclined toward another exhibition tour of the west next fall with the Amerks [illegible] decisions will not be made for some time. [illegible] just where he will hold his fall hockey [illegible].

ENSCONCED in his hotel room, big Torchy Peden, the Victoria redhead who has ridden in more six-[illegible] man before [illegible] of bikes and [illegible]. [illegible] best [illegible]. The Highlands Games [illegible] the scene of his [illegible].

The more Torchy talked, the more [illegible] that I really got a break when I was raised on a saddle horse instead of a bike. Torchy tells me that one of these squirrelly six-day grinds means that each member of a team pedals something like 1,000 miles and that he is lucky if he averages four hours' sleep out of 24 . . . and these four hours, mind you, are snatched in short naps. He starts a race with three complete bikes, plus two extra front wheels and three extra rear units. After four or five races he has to get new rims and spokes all around.

"It's the spills that cause the trouble," he explains. "When you see a tangle of riders and machines ahead of you, the safest thing is to head straight into them and pile on top—but it's also the hardest thing in racing to do. You instinctively want to turn out and when you do you generally go into a skid, slide end over applecart on the hardwood track, burn yourself and maybe pick up a skinful of slivers."

[illegible] day [illegible] are as sound as a bell today. He has plenty of big time seasons left in his robust system yet. A week or two of rest is generally enough after a six-day race, he [illegible] events without a [illegible].

"It's just like any other sport. It won't hurt you if you get in proper condition by starting lightly and working up. [illegible] start in the latter part of July to tune up for next fall by taking forty or fifty-mile jaunts every day. Any athlete is asking for grief if he strains himself before he is in condition. Take it slowly at first even if it seems you haven't done enough to tire a [illegible] warmed up and shoot the works. Starting any kind of race before you are warmed up and your muscles are loose is the most dangerous thing you can do."

Martells Win 3-Up Against Jasper Aces

IN A MATCH that sparkled with sensational play, the Martell brothers retained the Eaton challenge golf trophy with a three and two win over Jimmy Hogan and Bill Brinkworth of Jasper at the Highlands Club here Sunday afternoon.

It was young Jimmy Hogan who put the fire in the match and extended the masterly Martells. The long lad from Jasper was hot—red-hot. He was banging them off the tee like rifle shots, laying them up on the green with sensational recoveries from the rough where his booming drives often landed, and then sinking putts that brought gasps and applause from the big gallery time after time.

The veteran Brinkworth was not at his best. He got into plenty of trouble but when the results were all tabulated out he wasn't much behind the others in the total number of strokes used to get around the 16 holes played.

There was little choice between challengers and defenders [illegible] birdie three by Henry on the seventh put the Martells two-up at the end of the first nine.

On the second nine the [illegible] tightened down and began to [illegible] sizzling golf. Burns Martell's [illegible] shot stopped 15 yards from the edge [illegible] of the green—a full 35 yards from [illegible] applause. But Hogan wasn't daunted. He put [illegible] and holed out for a three, a dead putt of 15 yards. He got a rousing hand from the gallery. [illegible] green [illegible] gully, [illegible] won a single hole.

Cleveland Hoopsters Arrive For Second Crack at Underwood Trophy

CARRYING United States' hopes for basketball supremacy and all set to make their second bid for the Underwood trophy against Edmonton Commercial Grads, Cleveland Fisher Foods arrived in the city this morning ready for their best-of-five series with the Grads, that opens at the Arena, Tuesday, May 24, at 9:00 p.m.

The southern hoopsters appeared to be in fine condition and little wearied despite their long, tedious train journey. Nor did they show the least signs of nervousness over the prospects of tackling the world's basketball queens. Last year the Cleveland hoopsters challenged the Grads only to lose in three straight games by scores of 50-24, 42-17, 48-26.

Champions of Ohio and Midwestern United States, the Cleveland lasses form one of the strongest quintets that have ever invaded Edmonton in quest of the coveted Underwood trophy. They tackled Chicago All-Stars, who gave Grads such a rousing tussle for the Underwood crown last week, in Chicago, and were defeated by the slim margin of a single point in both games played.

Included in Cleveland's lineup are Margaret Fschil[illegible], who received All-American rating at the recent National tournament in St. Louis, Frances Sobcak, whose height of 6 feet, one inch, makes her a dangerous threat to any team, Flora Graham, one of the leading scorers in Midwestern United States, and such stars are Bernice Korec, Florence Nothstine, Laura Mansfield, Margaret Teachout, and Doris Trane.

One of the most cheering announcements to come out of the Grad camp in a long time was that Helen Northup would probably be able to get into action for a few minutes in each game against Cleveland. Easily one of the peppiest and scrappiest players to ever don a Grad uniform, Helen's presence in the Edmonton lineup, even for a few minutes, will be a mighty big help to the champs.

However, Coach Percy Page will depend mainly on the remaining six regular members of the Grads to carry the brunt of battle with the invading southerners. And that they were quite capable of handling the heavy task was well proven in their recent series with Chicago All-Stars. They took Chicago in three straight games. And still weren't satisfied. They are hoping to boost their scoring accuracy several notches over that made in the series with Chicago.

Madison's Champ Jinx Is Ring Talk

NEW YORK, May 23—The old bugaboo about the jinx Madison Square Garden bowl has on champions was pulled out of the mothballs Sunday with the approach of Barney Ross' defence of his welterweight boxing title against Henry Armstrong, wearer of the feather crown.

No champion has ever successfully defended his laurels in the sprawling Long Island City saucer.

SLIGHT FAVORITE

Barney hasn't given much thought to the hoodoo talk but Ross, despite his weight advantage, only rules 7 to 5 favorite to withstand the lethal fists of his negro challenger Thursday night.

Ross himself is amongt he mittmen who have taken advantage of the jinx and also felt its sting. In 1934 he gained the welter title by licking Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin and then lost it back to the clouting celt in the same arena.

Promoter Mike Jacobs hopes customers will fill at least 40,000 of the bowl's 70,000 seats to see what happens when a good big man and a good little man meet. It will be the first time the lights have been turned on in the bowl for boxing since Jim Braddock walloped Max Baer to win the heavy title in 1935.

HANK NOT WORRIED

Never knocked off his feet in 200 amateur and professional ring encounters, Homicide Hank isn't worrying about the five or six pounds advantage his Jewish opponent will carry into the ring. Armstrong has 27 straight victories to his credit, 35 of them by knockouts. Eddie Mead, his manager, predicts his boy will add Ross to the k.o. list late in the 15-round tussle.

Ross' handlers are more optimistic for an early ending—but with Barney still on his feet. They figure five or six rounds will be sufficient for the welter king to flatten the brown buzzsaw.

Bud Foley Beats Columbus Batsmen

Al Fenton Belts Out Double, Driving Home Maveety For Winning Margin; Coughlin Loses Tight Duel

By JACK DEAKIN

AL FENTON'S ninth inning double drive to right field, combined with Smiling Bud Foley's steady five-hit pitching job, gave Arrow Busses a 1-0 triumph against Columbus Club and league leadership as one of the biggest crowds to date crowded Renfrew Park Sunday afternoon.

Three thousand or more fans filed into the spacious ball park below the hill and saw a game which topped the first two performances of senior teams. While slight weakness was shown by batters in the pinches, fans saw Bud Foley and Tony Coughlin stage a torrid pitching duel. Steady twirling kept the game at a fast pace and fans alive with interest until Fenton crashed a two-base knock in the last half of the ninth, scoring Mark Maveety for the game's only run.

It was the second straight triumph for the Arrow boys who again went out fighting for the triumph and mainly for their ailing sponsor, Vic Horner.

FIELDING IS GOOD

Foley received grand support from his mates. Arrows made but one error, an unnecessary misplay in centre field in the fifth inning. The hockey playing Colvilles, Neil and Mac were stars in the outer gardens. Several times Neil and Mac "shagged" nearly impossible fly balls, which, if missed, could easily have gone for singles and doubles. Mac made five putouts in the right gardens, once tossing a heavy body check into a policeman, who went floundering when Mac raced for a high foul fly. Neil shagged a pair of beauties off of the left field fence and received a great hand from the large throng of patrons.

Arrow infield work also looked good. Al Fenton played well at the second sack, starting a double play in the first inning to pull Foley out of a bad spot. Again Fenton helped Foley out in the fifth frame making a quick recovery on a grounder which retired the Kaycees when they had two ducks on the pond.

KAYCEES GOOD

And Columbus Club stole their share of the game's spotlight. Tony Coughlin matched pitch for pitch with Foley in a gruelling eight innings, barely failing to come through during a ninth inning Arrow uprising.

The Kaycees looked vastly improved over their first start and certainly will be an outfit needing much attention before the season is through. Playing this kind of baseball the turnstiles will undoubtedly become more brisk during the week nights.

With the exception of two innings, the second and fifth, Foley worked "stuff" on the ball so neatly that he faced no great danger. In the second the Kaycees nicked his hook for two singles with only one batter retired. Bud came through with a strikeout for the second putout and the side was retired with no damage done when Fairhurst completed a play from third to first. Fred Lupul's error in the fifth nearly stole the game away from the Arrows, but again the Arrow infield tightened up to help Bud out.

STARTED STRONG

Arrows started strongly, getting their best scoring chance in the first frame. Two ringing singles by Fairhurst and Fred Lupul gave them a good start with only one out, but Coughlin turned loose his steam for a strikeout and J[illegible] made a long running catch at centre for the third out.

Tony was seldom in trouble until the ninth when Dave Fenton reached first when struck by a pitched ball. Maveety reached first when his batted grounder struck Fenton on the leg while the latter was running to second. The play left Maveety safe but retired Fenton. Maveety stole to second base before the second Arrow was retired. It all depended on Al Fenton. He came through with his double for the winning run.

As the run came across the home plate Foley's grin widened into one of the happiest smiles the rugged E.A.C. hockey star has ever flashed. It was Bud's first game with the seniors and proved a pleasant debut.

Davis Cup Roundup

Great Britain's young Davis cup squad was on the verge of elimination from the international tennis event Sunday as rain halted the second round European zone series between Britain and Yugoslavia at Zagreb.

Germany, bringing out a fresh threat, and France and Sweden entered the round of eight in the zone, leaving two series to be completed in the second round.

Yugoslavia and Britain 2-0 in matches and had a lead in the doubles. Ferenc Puncec defeated R. A. Lycett, Britain, in the second singles match Sunday 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. Rain halted the doubles between Puncec and Demeter. Mitic for Yugoslavia and D. W. Butler and L. W. Wilde with the score 7-5, 6-3, 1-3 for Yugoslavia.

LITTLE HOPE

There appeared little hope that Britain, holders of the cup until last year, and now without her great pair of Fred Perry and H. W. (Bunny) Austin, would get past Yugoslavia when play is resumed today.

The German team, with the Austrian, George Von Metaxa, as its leading player, routed Norway 4-1. France gained its third straight victory over Monaco, winning the doubles, and clinched the series while Sweden trimmed Switzerland 4-1.

Previously Belgium, India and Hungary reached the third round, Belgium by defeating Greece; India and Hungary by default of Austria and New Zealand.

Cardinals to Play Old Belmont Rivals Tuesday

Tie for Senior League Lead at Stake for Cards if They Win

RALPH MORGAN'S Army and Navy Cardinals, winners of their first start in the Senior Baseball League, will be meeting their old bitter rivals, the Belmonts at Renfrew Park Tuesday afternoon. Tuesday's game will start at 3 p.m.

The Cardinals will have a tie for league leadership at stake. A win for the Cards will place them on even terms with the Arrow Busses who took over leadership yesterday with a 1-0 triumph against Columbus Club.

BELMONTS TO BATTLE

On the other hand, Belmonts, considered the hardest hitting crew in the league, are faced with the necessity of knocking over the Cards in order to keep up the pace with the leaders. Belmonts lost their first start to the Arrows, it was their first game and they are expected to show much more stuff in Tuesday's game.

Manager Harney of the Belmonts will toss a heavy dose of lefthand pitching at the Cards. Lefty Fisk, claimed by many to be about the best southpaw elbower in the west, gets the starting nod for the Belmonts. Should Fisk show signs of weakness then Harney has a second pitcher to toss, he's Pete Turner, a strapping big fellow who dusts 'em fast down the groove.

Belmont infield will stay practically intact while Harney plans the odd change in the outfield in an effort to inject new hitting power to the team.

BRANT FOR CARDS

Tommy Brant, big and rugged speedbelter, will be rifling home plate for the Cards. Brant also plays third base when not pitching. He has shown his stuff with many a triumph last year and featured when hurling against touring baseball teams.

Once again, the game gets under way at 3:00 p.m., with Umpire John Ducey officiating.

Somerville, Yates Golf's Two Dark Horses

TROON, Scotland, May 23 — Sandy Somerville and Charlie Yates became the dark horses last night to win the British Amateur Golf championship starting today.

Somerville, veteran shotmaker from London, Ont., has attracted the critics mainly because he can hit iron shots closer to the hole than any man in the field.

AT TOP OF GAME

He came over a month ago to get ready for the championship, has been practising on English seaside courses, and is at the top of his game, as he was in 1932 when he became the only Canadian ever to win the United States amateur.

Watching Somerville practice Duncan McColloch, the Troon pro, remarked: "You can have any man you want. I'll take Sandy."

Yates has gained prominence for three reasons: He's canning the ball from all over the green. Johnny Fischer, his first round opponent has suddenly lost the touch and if he gets past Fischer he'll have a comparatively easy march to the semi-finals.

Johnny Goodman, the United States amateur champion, is still favorite in the betting. For years the United States has won the amateur every time the Walker Cup team competed. Jesse Sweetser did in 1926, Bobby Jones in 1930 and Lawson Little in 1934.

A number of first round matches will be run off day and the remainder on Tuesday.

British critics decided Goodman is about 8 to 1 shot. Fischer is the second choice at 10 to 1. Francis Ouimet, veteran captain of the American Walker Cup team, has been made the third choice at 12 to 1.

Yates, Somerville and Reynolds Smith of Dallas are next in line at 14 to 1. The Anglo-American defending champion, Robert Sweeny was not ranked with the leaders in the betting.

Regina To Build New Artificial Downtown Rink

REGINA, May 23.—Formation of a joint stock company to promote erection of a new artificial ice rink in downtown Regina, it was decided on here at a public meeting of sportsmen Friday. The proposed rink would be built on Broad street park.

Opposition to a counter-proposal —that an artificial ice plant be installed in the old stadium—was given by several sportsmen.

"If we ever put ice in the stadium it will take years to get it out," said P. Whitall.

"You get sore eyes dodging posts in the stadium in order to see the hockey players," added George Roust.

SURBITON, England, May 23.—Helen Wills Moody trounced Margaret Lumb, British squash racquets ace, 6-3, 6-4, Saturday to win the Surrey tennis championship.

Bunty Lawless Wins Historic King's Plate

TORONTO, May 23.—Name of a gallant colt, Bunty Lawless, branded the best since Inferno, was engraved in Canadian turf history—winner of the 79th running of the King's Plate.

Before a crowd of 26,000, greatest ever to view the historic race, Bunty Lawless galloped to a handy mile-and-a-furlong victory Saturday at picturesque Woodbine Park. He covered the distance in 1:54 2-5, one-fifth of a second off the plate record set by Horometer in 1934.

The undersized colt rewarded owner Willie Morrissey's confidence by a length-and-a-half triumph over Mona Bell, carrying the colors of the Casgrave stable of Toronto. Cabin Gal, owned by Harry Giddings of Oakville, was third, four lengths further in the rear. Grand Dame, owned by G. M. Hendrie of Hamilton, was fourth and H. C. Hatch's Caracole fifth.

NEVER IN DOUBT

Victory for the son of Ladder Mintwins was never in doubt after the field of 14 pounded the turn to the stretch drive. Jockey Jackie Bailey rated Bunty Lawless behind the sizzling pace set by Mona Bell and then made his winning bid at the home turn.

Lord Tweedmuir, Governor General, presented Morrissey with 50 guineas, donated by the King. In addition Morrissey drew $6,780 first prize. The total purse, after nomination and starting fees had been added, was $9,780.

Morrissey's total winnings, including the prize money and numerous side bets, were estimated as high as $20,000. He won $4,000 from a syndicate backing Hatch's Suffern in a horse-for-horse wager.

Cabin Gal finished with the greatest closing rush. She held seventh place through the back stretch and began to pick up under the urging of Tony Pasquma. But despite a great stretch drive was unable to menace the leaders. Grand Dame, backed down to 4-1 in the mutuels, never entered serious contention.

Bunty Lawless paid $7.95 to win, $5.95 to place and $4.20 to show. Mona Bell returned $19.30 for a $2 place ticket and $10.65 for show. Cabin Gal paid $7.15.

Teufel Captures Puritan Handicap

BOSTON, May 23.—Before a crowd of 34,000 at Suffolk Downs Saturday, Ogden Phipps' Teufel won the $10,000 added Puritan handicap by a head over W. V. Stirgrath's South American importation, Peligroso II.

Timed in 1:50.3 for the mile and a furlong, Teufel was locked almost head and head with the second horse from the quarter pole to the wire. Flying hand and heel with precision, the veteran Johnny Longden up, Teufel, Alta., retained the slight advantage he held during the field straightened away in the stretch. Clodion finished third.

Swiss Eleven Beats English Soccer Team 2-1

ZURICH, Switzerland, May 23.—The Displaying marked superiority, Switzerland humbled England 2-1 Saturday in an International football match before a crowd of 35,000 spectators. A week ago the Englishmen defeated Germany 6-3 at Berlin.

The home players went into the lead, when Aebi, outside-left, scored, but Bastin, clever Arsenal forward, put the scores level before halftime by converting a penalty awarded English because of an illegal tackle. Another penalty, this time for hands against a visiting defender, gave the Swiss their victory, Abegglen scoring.

Although conditions favored England's style of play the forwards showed exceptionally poor combination, repeatedly passing going to their opponents. Switzerland gave a good exhibition of ball play. The players kept their positions well and proved fast and keen.

Scots Defeat Dutch Team 3-1

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Scotland defeated Holland 3-1 in an international soccer match here Saturday. Sixty thousand spectators saw a keen game with the Scotsmen obviously the cleverer team but lacking punch in front of goal.

There was no scoring in the first half, when the defences broke up the repeated attacks of both sets of forwards. The Scots improved after the interval, Black and Walker, flanks of Middlothian stars, each netting. Murphy, Glasgow Celtic notched the third goal, while Cente got through for Holland.

Coast Turfman Has Winner at Tanforan

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—Cutting down a six-length lead with a flashing burst of speed in the stretch, Fire Marshall, chocolate colored colt by Major A. C. Taylor of Vancouver, B.C., won the $5,000 added Tanforan three-year-old championship handicap Saturday.

Grim Reaper, post time favorite, ran second a neck behind. Wing and Wing finished third.

The time of 1:44-4-5 was exceptionally fast for the three-year-olds.

Kurtsinger Is Sure Admiral Will Triumph

NEW YORK, May 23.—Betting money now is around 3 to 5 that War Admiral Man O' War's handsome son, will come winging home in the lead in the $100,000 match race against Seabiscuit at Belmont Park next Monday.

Charley Kurtsinger, who will ride the Admiral, is a lot like his famous steed. He's a chatty, cocksure little guy who is busy every second when his horse starts running, though he never has laid a whip on War Admiral more than a couple of times.

"Sure, I'm going to jump right out in front and keep going," he says confidently, "because I know War Admiral can outrun any horse on the track today. I hope Seabiscuit makes it close, though."

Red Pollard of Edmonton is different. He's tall for a jockey, towering nearly a head above Kurtsinger, and he's as quiet and contained as Seabiscuit. All he could think of to say at a recent conclave of the sound movies was, "I hope to win."

He rides with what is known in the trade as a "straight back." That is, he stands high up in his short stirrups and makes a horizontal line from his hip pockets to his head. He sits easy and lets Seabiscuit do the running. Kurtsinger climbs up on War Admiral's neck and hustles.

Edward Hinkelman Wins Optimist Car

Edward's ticket was 2529 FF, and he took delivery of the car, a new sedan, Monday afternoon.

Italian Navy's War Dogs Bark for Hitler

Chancellor Hitler took home a vivid memory of Italy's sea might after watching, during his recent visit, the great naval sham battle staged for his benefit at Naples by Premier Mussolini. As the great battleships, pictured above, thundered out broadsides, 85 submarines burst to the surface simultaneously and, as seen below, loosed deck cannon which fired 1,000 shots a minute.

BRITAIN WORKS FOR PEACE ON TAUT SUNDAY

Full Cabinet Meets For Emergency Session During Czech Crisis

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 23.—All through an anxious week-end Great Britain worked strenuously in both Berlin and Praha for peace. The situation was a little quieter last night but in the view of a high British authority it still remains extremely critical.

The full cabinet met in emergency session for an hour for the reported purpose of putting the whole weight of the government behind Franco-British moves to block a German march into Czechoslovakia.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, who left London on Friday to spend the week-end with friends, decided at 10:30 p.m. Saturday to summon the urgent meeting of the cabinet. The usual curious crowds gathered in Downing street as the cabinet members, with anxious faces, appeared this afternoon.

TO LEARN FACTS

The meeting was summoned, however, not with a view to taking grave decisions of policy but to learn the facts from Viscount Halifax, the foreign secretary.

French papers emphasize the British and French governments are as one in their efforts for peace. "Our government is unsparing in its efforts to prevent the incidents from leading to conflict," said the Petit Parisien (Independent). "While Britain showers counsels of moderation on Berlin, France is exhorting Czechoslovakia, a friendly nation, to prudence."

The Berlin correspondent of the Paris Journal (Rightist) pointed out news of the new British démarche to which German troop movements gave rise has not yet been published in Germany.

Berlin dispatches state "a slight détente" occurred in the international situation.

It is felt in Praha the situation is rather as a result of British diplomatic activity. Praha was quiet even for a Sunday. Intermittent showers kept crowds off the streets. Reservists of the 1938 class, called to the colors by Saturday's order, trickled into the capital with bundles on their shoulders.

Authoritative Czech quarters state no further military measures are contemplated.

Dr. Kamil Krofta, Czechoslovak foreign minister, assured the Hungarian and Polish ministers the troop movements were not directed against either Hungary or Poland.

FRANCE READY MOBILIZE TO HELP CZECHS

Relief Felt At Absence Of New Outbreaks In Czechoslovakia

PARIS, May 23.—An official French spokesman last night asserted France would mobilize in the event of any German aggression against Czechoslovakia, her mid-European ally whose integrity she has pledged to protect.

Relief was felt here at absence of new outbreaks of violence in Czechoslovakia and the failure of Germany to make any move against her neighbor.

The spokesman indicated the French belief the present excitement over Czechoslovakia and due largely to Nazi tub-thumping to found riches in the Czech municipal elections.

WOULD TAKE ACTION

Both French observers and semi-official sources, however, declared the Anglo-French bloc had "retreated far enough" and would take action in case of any German move against Czechoslovakia.

French statesmen watched mid-European developments closely, keeping in constant contact with London.

Premier Edouard Daladier remained at his office in the war ministry, where he talked with Georges Bonnet, foreign minister. The French view of the Czechoslovakian question was that it was up to France alone to decide when and if to go to Czechoslovakia's aid in case of trouble. Soviet Russia is pledged to follow France if she backs up the Czechs with military support.

SEES AMBASSADORS

Foreign Minister Bonnet received the Polish ambassador to France, Juliusz Lukasiewicz, following conferences Saturday with the ambassadors of Great Britain, Czechoslovakia and Soviet Russia.

In talks with Stanislaw Ouszky, Czechoslovak minister, and Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador, Bonnet outlined the "permanent position of France in the Czech problem," official sources said.

Bonnet, it was authoritatively stated, told the various ambassadors the French-Czech mutual assistance pact will be carried out faithfully if necessary.

Diplomatic quarters attached high significance to the conference with the Polish envoy. Recent unconfirmed reports had suggested Poland might adopt a policy of friendly neutrality toward Germany in the event of hostilities with Czechoslovakia.

Three Raids Net Thieves $40 Loot

Police reported Monday that there had been three burglaries in the city during the week-end, and that thieves had netted a total of about $40 in the three raids.

Saturday night thieves broke into the International Hall, 10220 97 street, and escaped with $17 worth of cigarettes and tobacco. On the same night the Gorton Motors, 109 street and Jasper avenue, was entered by thugs who escaped with $1.50 in stamps. Sunday night thieves broke into the Chester Lunch, 10175 99 street, and looted the till of $3 and an automatic photograph of $10.

LONDON, May 23.—With war tension tightening up along the frontiers, Europe is reverting to all the moves, counter-moves and intricacies of pre-war diplomacy. Germany and Italy are determined to prove their words that they have found a new equality with the other great powers, and they are doing everything possible to show Great Britain and France that they will not be considered inferior to those two nations.

It is believed here that the visit of King Victor Emanuel of Italy to Berlin next July is a countermove to the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to France in June next. Berlin and Rome regard the visit of British royalty to France as sealing what is tantamount to an Anglo-French alliance, just as the visit of King Edward VII cemented the pre-war entente cordiale.

GERMANY ANXIOUS

Therefore, Germany is particularly anxious that the Rome-Berlin axis should be similarly blessed by royalty, hence the visit of the Italian king to the German fuehrer.

Whereas, however, the Anglo-French understanding has a natural basis, and is backed by the peoples of both countries, it is realized that the Rome-Berlin axis has many unnatural foundations and is merely a political arrangement whereby both countries believe they will be able to secure more bargaining power when dealing with the democratic powers.

When Hitler went to Rome his efforts were mainly directed against Mussolini's understanding with Britain, and was designed to show Great Britain that Germany still has a friend in Europe, and that if Britain made any diplomatic moves against Germany she would still have to reckon with the force of the Berlin-Rome axis.

BRITAIN UNIMPRESSED

Britain remained unimpressed, however, because officials here know that Hitler on the Brenner Pass is far from the liking of Mussolini, although the latter, for diplomatic reasons, professes to feel no alarm over the presence of the German troops at that strategic point.

Germany is convinced that the British re-armament plans are directed against herself and she fears that when Great Britain is powerful enough she is going to attempt to isolate Germany and to force that country to abandon its designs of expansion in Europe.

She is right as far as the re-arming is concerned as the British have admitted that they are seeking to retain parity in the air with Germany, but she is wrong regarding the isolation plan. Britain does not seek to isolate Germany. All she wants is an understanding with Germany and the abandonment of the use of force in Europe for the purpose of obtaining Germany's political view.
